NEW CONGRESS SCRAP DELAYS ADJOURNMENT

Lawmakers Unpack Suitcases Again While Session Goes Into Another Day.

SPEND-LEND BILL HIT

$212,000,000 Fund for Farm Benefits Delays Wind-up and Homeward Trek.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Last-minute disagreements over the spending-lending bill and an emergency appropriation measure delayed the wind-up of congress again today.

Members, wearied by several false starts toward adjournment, worked doggedly to end the five and a half months' session before nightfall.

Optimistic legislators who confidently had expected to quit last evening had to unpack their suitcases to get clean shirts for the final meeting. They urged colleagues to hold speechmaking to a minimum.

Principal Controversy.

A few details of the spending-lending bill, which provides $3,753,000,000 for relief and public works, furnished the principal controversy.

Both chambers had to approve an agreement reached last night by a senate-house committe on the distribution of $212,000,000 in farm benefits. A separate vote had to be taken on another section of the bill providing operating expenses for the rural electrification administration.

A joint committee was called together to adjust differences between the final appropriation bills passed by both senate and house. The latter put $279,000,000 into the "catch-all" measure, to which the senate added $10,000,000.

The senate, convening at noon, had the makings of a lively debate over a proposal to investigate the use of public funds to influence elections.

Roosevelt Delayed.

The delay in adjournment held up President Roosevelt's departure for the wedding of his son, John, at Nahant, Mass., Saturday.

The president was slated to take a last-minute drubbing on his veto of a bill to continue low interest rates for government loans on farm lands and commodities. Mr. Roosevelt declared the measure could cost $208,700,000.

The veto, dispatched to congress yesterday, was overridden in the house by a vote of 244 to 87. The senate arranged to vote today, and leaders forecast it, too, would vote to enact the bill.

Congress Keeps President From Wedding Gaiety

WASHINGTON —(INS)— While the 75th congress went through the death throes of its final session, President Roosevelt waited restlessly in the White House today.

The president had a most important engagement on the north shore of Massachusetts and the failure of congress to adjourn last night already had forced him to materially revise his arrangements to leave Washington.

The engagement was attendance of the wedding Saturday in Nahant, Mass., of his youngest son, John, to Miss Anne Lindsay Clark. Mr. Roosevelt will be there, congress or no congress, but he wants to get under way tonight so he may participate in some of the final pre-nuptial gaiety on Friday.

If the final gavel falls before dinner time, the president will board a special train about 7 or 8 this evening and head for Salem, Mass., there boarding the White House yacht Potomac for a final run to nearby Nahant. Son John has high hopes of being able to entertain his wedding party aboard the Potomac tomorrow night.

BERLIN — (U.P.) — The German press and official radio hailed Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City today as a hero, fighting for freedom.

Zwelfuhrblatt, printing an account of the CIO court proceedings against the mayor in Newark, headlined it "Mayor struggles for right and freedom and against democratic confusion of ideas."

Tragic Story of Austrian Jews' Futile Hunt for Haven Unfolded

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The heart-rending plight of political and racial refugees in central Europe is graphically described in the following article by H. R. Knickerbocker, Pulitzer prize winner and noted foreign correspondent of International News Service. This article, first of two, discloses the tragic story of 51 Jews, rejected by every nation to which they have appealed, whose only home is an old barge on the Danube river.)

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

(International News Service Staff Correspondent—Copyright, 1938)

PRAGUE—The great war has been avoided, they say, but one of the most evil consequences of war has already been visited upon Europe. From Spain, from Nazi Germany, from all the central European countries which feel the threat of war, but most of all from Austria, hundreds of thousands of refugees are clamoring for asylum at the frontiers of neighboring countries.

They have become a major problem to the governments of every European land, and to statesmen torn between human pity and the limits of what can practically be done. Most of them are Jews, and the flood of them breaking against the barbed wire on every border presents a picture of misery to be exceeded nowhere outside an active war zone.

After the Nazi conquest of Austria, the fate of its Jews is becoming comparable to their fate at the hands of the Egyptians, except that there is no Red sea to swallow up their enemies. Their plight is becoming worse because with a ruthlessness not even practiced in the old reich, the Nazis are systematically driving them out of Austria and shoving them illegally by night over the borders of neighboring states, without passports, money, food or clothing.

What this means can be judged by the experience of the homeless Jews whom I have just visited on a barge in the Danube river in Hungary. The old hulk of a barge is their only home. It is their nation. They are fifty-one Jews without a country, rejected in the year of our Lord 1938 by every nation to which they have appealed.

Half a dozen of them have relatives in America, chiefly in New York, and this is the first message that many of them have been able to send, for I was the first American to visit the "ship of the wandering Jews." They are forgotten by all, apparently doomed to live on a barge the rest of their lives, a lesson to all who believe in the laws of brotherly love.

Their tale was told to me by Aladar Reissner, 35, one-time leading hotel keeper of the village of Kittsee, whence most of them come. We lay on the bank of the Danube while two Hungarian gendarmes watched to see that no Jew strayed beyond 50 yards from the gangplank. The sun shone brilliantly and sparkled on the river, and the green fields of Czechoslovakia on the farther bank smiled peacefully but the rifles of the gendarmes gleamed as well.

"We were a total of only 38 Jews in all the 3,000 inhabitants of Kittsee, and there were 13 more of us in the hamlet of Parna nearby," he said. "We had lived there for generations, all of us, my family for over 100 years. Until Hitler came we hardly knew what anti-Semitism was, for the Austrians treated us like one of them."

Aladar himself had no Jewish facial characteristics, but looked like an Austrian peasant, straight-nosed, brown and sturdy.

"I belonged to every club and society in town and I know they liked me," he said. "I had the most popular hotel; everybody came to it.

"They even kept on coming after the Germans marched into Austria but we were far away from Vienna, and the first sign of trouble only came when they confiscated the passports of all Jews. Then all of a sudden at dawn on April 16th, five Gestapo men, you know the German secret police, in the black uniforms of the S. S., came to our village.

"When they got to our house we were still in bed, myself, my wife, my 65-year-old mother, and my children two and four years old. They pulled us out of bed in our night clothes, drove the family with blows into the cellar and locked me in a room.

"Pretty soon a big blond fellow, whom I later came to know as the commander, named Anton Woelke, of

M'CALL SILENT AS HE HEARS DEATH ORDER

Abductor of Boy, 5, Listens Without Flinching While Judge Reads Sentence.

NO APPEAL, LAWYER SAYS

Trucker's Attorney Says Trial Was Fair as He Announces Defense Will Quit.

(By Associated Press)

MIAMI, Fla. — Franklin Pierce McCall, 21, was sentenced today to die in the electric chair for the kidnaping of Jimmy Cash, jr.

Cautioning the crowded courtroom to keep quiet, Circuit Judge H. F. Atkinson called the minister's son to the bench.

"You plead guilty to the offense as charged of kidnaping and holding James Bailey Cash, jr., for ransom. What have you to say for yourself?" he demanded.

McCall merely shook his head.

Pronounces Sentence.

"I find you guilty as charged in the indictment," the judge continued, "the same being a capital offense under the laws of Florida, and I sentence you to be held until such time as you shall be delivered to the superintendent of the state prison at Raiford, there to be held safely until a death sentence shall be carried out."

The judge said the governor would fix the date for the execution, specified the prisoner was to be put to death by electricity and concluded with the customary, "may God have mercy on your soul."

McCall heard his doom without flinching. His face was impassive and he looked straight ahead.

Jack Kehoe, the defense attorney appointed by the court, said he thought McCall had received a fair trial yesterday and that there would be no appeal.

Found Guilty.

The 21-year-old truck driver was adjudged guilty yesterday after a plea before Circuit Judge H. F. Atkinson that he was driven by visions of the $10,000 ransom which was paid but later recovered.

McCall, son of a minister and a resident of this section, told the court how he stole five-year-old Skeegie, as the Cash boy was known, from the Cash home at Princeton the night of May 28.

"No one else ever had money tempt them that much," he said.

McCall sat with eyes downcast while James Bailey Cash, sr., father of the dead boy, and Mrs. Cash identified pajamas worn by their son. McCall maintained he never intended killing the boy.

OVERPASS ON 30N SOUGHT

City to Ask Federal Government to Include W. Fourth Project in '39 Program.

City officials today prepared to ask the federal government to include in its 1939 road program the construction of an overpass at the Baltimore and Ohio crossing on West Fourth street road (U. S. Route 30N) at the city limits.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter agreed at a conference yesterday with F. R. Hopley, of Bucyrus, state counsel for the Lincoln Highway association of which Route 30N is a part, to take the request before the state highway department in order that the city might share in the federal grade elimination fund.

Hunter said he would take the request to Boyd Wierman, Richland county state highway resident engineer, and ask for state approval so estimates can be prepared and submitted to the federal burau of roads in Washington before the 1939 program is made up.

Wierman explained that a traffic study would have to be made first by the highway department before it would give its approval to the project. However, should the department find that the elimination of the crossing was warranted, it would then prepare estimates which would be for-

SCORES AUDITOR

Berrodin Hits Plan to Cut Pensioners Off Relief.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Henry J. Berrodin, chief of the state division of the aid for the aged, today criticized deputies from the office of State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson who have threatened to stop direct relief to families where one member is receiving an old age pension.

In a letter to Ferguson, Berrodin said that he had received reports of the deputy auditors' actions from all parts of the state.

"I have reports from widespread sections," Berrodin said, "that the deputy auditors are demanding a violation of the law. The old age pension checks are individual aid and can not, under the social security law, be used for the benefit of any person other than the recipient."

FOUR-YEAR-OLD LITIGATION ENDS

Supreme Court Refuses to Review Olds Case; County Must Pay $1,500 in Damages.

The $25,000 Olds damage suit against Richland county commissioners, which has been in litigation in county, district and state courts for more than four years, was closed today, when the Ohio Supreme court refused to hear an appeal of the commissioners for a new trial.

Commissioners appealed the case after they lost a $1,500 verdict last fall in common pleas court. Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott and Atty J. V. Will, representing the county, argued the suit before the supreme court last Thursday. Refusal of the court to grant a new trial makes payment of the $1,500 compulsory.

The suit originally was the outgrowth of an automobile accident in 1934 near Lexington in which Mrs. Nora Elizabeth Olds was injured as she drove a car into a lane at her home. She contended the county road near her home was rough, causing her to lose control of the car. Mrs. Olds died after court action was started.

In the first trial of the case, the county won, but an appeal by the heirs of Mrs. Olds to the supreme court brought a second trial and finally a $1,500 verdict for the heirs.

6 Crack Legion Drum Corps To Compete In City Sunday

Contest at Fairground Features Legion's Fifth District Convention; $550 In Prizes Offered.

Six of the crack American Legion drum corps of Ohio will invade Mansfield Sunday to take part in the contest which will be held at the Fairground and for which $550 in prizes has been offered.

The contest is being staged in connection with the Fifth district Legion convention which is being held here Saturday and Sunday. The six competing corps are the Elyria post corps, state champion and one of the outstanding units in the middle west for years; the Massillon post, which was the only Ohio corps to place among the first 12 at the national convention in New York City last year; Akron post No. 19, Cleveland Heights; Toledo South Side, and Nelsonville.

Allowed 15 minutes.

Each unit will be allowed 15 minutes for maneuvers and playing and must confine their drill work to a square 160 by 300 feet. The corps will be judged on points which include bugles, drums, cadence, marching, maneuvers, general effect, time and inspection. There will be 13 judges.

Tickets for the event are being sold by Legionnaires.

The district convention gets under way Saturday at 4:30 p. m. with registration at the Legion home. A parade is set for 7:30 p. m. with a concert at Central park following in which the Tiffin post band, the Galion, Upper Sandusky and Mansfield drum corps and the Mansfield High school band will take part.

The McVey Post, which is observing its 19th anniversary this week, will hold a birthday dance at 10 p. m. Saturday. The conference session will be held in the Ohio theater at 9 a. m. Sunday with Congressman Dudley A. White of Norwalk speaking on "The Right of Free Speech." James A. Drain, a past national commander and now a speaker for the Social Security department, will talk on "The New Social Order."

Fund Agencies Get Allocations for Year's Work.

Allotments to the ten agencies participating in the Mansfield Community Fund were made last night by the executive board, which met at fund headquarters and considered the deficit in the 1938-39 budget.

The deficit was reduced and the total amount pledged was brought up to $50,000 yesterday afternoon when the Ohio Brass company added another $411 to its original pledge. The goal was $53,950.

Under the allocations, the agencies will receive the following amounts for a year's operation: Boy Scouts, $5,095; Friendly House, $6,490; Salvation Army, $4,635; Visiting Nurses, $6,025; Y. M. C. WEST OUT OF DEM PRIMARY Field Reduced to 3 as Board Disqualifies Petitions of Congressional Candidate.

The field of candidates for the 17th district Democratic congressional nomination was reduced to three today when the Richland county board of elections ruled out Ben West, Mt. Vernon, brother of former Congressman Charles West and one-time contact man for President Roosevelt.

Acting late yesterday on a complaint filed by Kenneth S. Beery, 9 Flint street, the board disqualified West because of illegal signatures on his petition, which, when eliminated, left his petition at least seven names short of the required number, board members said. The board approved approximately 200 other petitions of primary candidates.

West had filed just before the deadline Friday to oppose William A. Ashbrook of Johnstown, incumbent; Frank Cave of Springfield township, and Lee Purdy of Coshocton county, at the Aug. 9 primary.

The election board upheld Beery's complaint which charged that West's petition contained two signatures from Cuyahoga county, outside the district; six which had the appearance of being those of the same person; two of

BERLIN DOOMS JEWISH TRADE

Orders Marking of Non-Aryan Shops as Signal to Nazis to Boycott Them.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—The final death blow to Jewish business enterprises in Nazi Germany was dealt by the Hitler regime today.

An official announcement decreed that from today onward all establishments considered by the authorities to be Jewish owned or controlled must display a special marker.

This will, serve as a special signal to all loyal Nazis to give the establishment no patronage whatever, resulting in a systematic, nationwide boycott of all Jewish business.

The new decree was announced by a committee composed of Rudolph Hess, deputy Nazi party leader, Walter Funk, minister of economics, and Dr. Wilhelm Frick, minister of the interior.

Freeze Out Jewish Workers.

The same ruling also will compel Aryan business houses in Germany to "freeze out" Jews in their employ. Henceforth, any firm with more than 25 per cent Jewish capital or having even one Jew on its board of directors will be classified as Jewish.

Such firms will be compelled to display the non-Aryan warning signal. The decree also states that enterprises in which Jews of foreign nationalities are partners must register as Jewish business, making the boycott 100 per cent effective.

BLOCK PASSES

Insurgents Close Loyalists Retreat to Pyrenees.

HENDAYE — (U.P.) — Nationalist forces closed every pass into France today along the Pyrenees from the Bay of Biscay to Seo de Urgel isolating a few hundred rear guards of the loyalist 43rd "lost" division above the snow lines.

The loyalists, commanded by American-trained Col. Antonio Beltran, crossed the frontier at Gela Pass, near Tarbes. Stragglers caught behind the nationalists lines must make their way into France across treacherous glaciers.

The resistance of the loyalists, who held out for two months after being cut off from bases in Catalonia, was broken by bombardment of the upper Cinca valley.

Ham And Eggs By Hypodermic New Diet For Ailing

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—A full meal by hypodermic needle—an improvement on the old idea of a meal in a pill—becomes reality under a discovery announced to the American Medical association here today.

The discovery enables a doctor to inject proteins, the "ham, eggs and milk" of menus, directly into the blood. Heretofore the needle has been confined to injecting sugar, water and salts.

The needle meals will save the lives of persons whose stomachs refuse food. This happens not infrequently after surgical operations. While the patients do not directly starve to death, their partial starvation weakens them so that other complications kill them.

The protein injection leaves only fats and vitamins out to complete the "ideal diet" by needle.

SONGSTER LOSES

Grand Jury Dismisses Charge Against Film Director.

HOLLYWOOD—(U.P.)—A county grand jury, investigating charges that Milton Beecher, dance director for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, assaulted Eloise Spann, 21-year-old singer, exonerated him today and dismissed the $5,000,000 civil action filed by Miss Spann.

Miss Spann charged that he had given her liquor in his apartment and had taken advantage of her condition to assault her.

New Streamliners Just Blurs Of Light to 1,500 at Station

Some 1,500 Mansfielders packed the platform of the Pennsylvania station last night to see the new streamlined trains on their first runs—but probably not one of them could tell you much about what he saw.

The new trains—none of which stops here—roared through at astonishing speed, so that even the keenest eye saw only a blur of light and shadow.

Two of the three trains were streamlined, but none of them had streamlined engines. Company officials said the new engines had not been delivered in time for use on the first run.

The Liberty Limited, eastbound for Washington, was the first of the new trains to pass through Mansfield, right on the dot of 9:08 p. m. Four minutes later, the Broadway Limited roared through. In both cases there was a whistle, a headlight beam, a roar of wheels, a flash of light—and the train was gone. The Broadway was bound for New York.

The General went through in two sections, and neither section had the new streamlined cars, although the coaches and Pullmans were the standard cars of the line. The first section was a short one, and the second so long that two engines were needed to haul it.

The new west-bound streamliners went through Mansfield between 3:40 and 4:30 a. m., but no one, so far as rail officials knew, had stayed up for a glimpse of them.

Reich Minister Rejects Debts Of Austria, Raps U. S. Policy

(By International News Service)

BREMEN, Germany—Rejecting in principle Germany's obligations to take over Austria's foreign debts, Walther Funk, reich minister of economics, in a blistering speech today branded the economic policy of the United States as a "disturbing factor in world trade."

Funk's criticism of American economic policies was based upon Washington's war debt stand.

"No reasonable man in the world," Funk declared, "honestly believes that the war debts due America will be paid."

The economics minister was chief speaker at a meeting held here to commemorate the 400th anniversary of the Bremen Export Traders' association, one of the oldest business organizations in the world. He took occasion to predict that eventually Germany will surpass the United States as the world's largest producer of steel.

Funk's talk encompassed the whole range of international economic problems. He demanded substantial reduction in the interest rates on Young and Dawes plan bonds and on the question of Austrian debts.

German steel production, he said, amounted to 9,020,000 tons for the first five months of this year as against 9,018,000 tons in the United States during the same period.

WORLD ALERT TO INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH AID

America Leading All Others With Expenditure Totaling 100 Millions In Year.

(By United Press)

PITTSBURGH—The United States spent $100,000,000 last year to lead all other nations in the field of industrial research, according to a world survey read to the American Chemical society by Dr. William A Hamor, assistant director of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research.

The never-ending search for new products and materials has led to scientific experiments on almost every conceivable subject and in many countries novel synthetics have opened a new era of solvents, plastics, paints, pharmaceuticals and perfumes, Dr. Hamor said.

Hundreds of scientific investigations are underway in Canada, Great Britain, Germany, France, Italy, India, Sweden, Switzerland, Russia, Australia, Brazil, Chile, Denmark, Honduras, Guatemala, Norway and Palestine.

Smaller Nations Active.

The report, a comprehensive outline of the research activities throughout the world, reveals that experiments flourish in the smaller as well as the larger nations. Switzerland, Dr. Hamor reports, holds European leadership in pharmaceutical research. The demand for insecticides has resulted in reorganization of Palestine's sulphur industry. German chemists are aiding Brazilian authorities in search of new uses for surplus coffee.

Dr Hamor summarized research activity in this country in a separate report.

Spodumene, most plentiful of the lithium-bearing ores, has been put to work to produce lithium chloride for use in the conditioning and drying of air, the American report showed.

"Experiments in Texas have shown that addition of carbon black to concrete gives a highway pavement a dark luster that reduces glare. Vitamin A is being produced from fish-liver oils by molecular distillation. Food preservation is being investigated on a large scale. Barite can now be freed from silica and iron by a froth flotation process. The electrolytic reduction of sugars to corresponding alcohols has been carried out on a commercial basis.

Book of the Week

"TRENDING INTO MAINE," by Kenneth Roberts, Illustrated by N. C. Wyeth; (Little Brown: $4).

• • •

Now that the limited edition has been (presumably) sold out, the publishers of Kenneth Roberts' "Trending Into Maine" are letting the general public in on the secret, at what appears to this reader a very modest price considering the beauty of the book, and particularly considering the numerous and exceedingly handsome illustrations "in full color" by N. C. Wyeth.

"Trending Into Maine" is another of the "place books" which has broken out on our literary circles in the last year or two. It is a book written to make the literate section of the public see Maine as Mr. Roberts sees Maine. That is to say, to make the public think Maine is the equivalent of Greece in her golden age, plus Augustan Rome, Elizabethan England and New England in full flower.

The reader will find traces of Mr. Roberts' last five novels throughout the new book. He includes, for example, a number of letters which enable his reader to understand Maine's sea-faring folk in the day of their prime—Maine captains used to take their wives with them on their long voyages, and some of these letters are from sea-going wives. Indeed, Maine captains rather looked down on British captains, their theory being that British ships weren't fit for women, else women would be on them.

He will find much descriptive matter, the best of which was (for this reader, the section on the potato empire, otherwise known as the Aroostook country. This is rich, beautiful, and rather like a section of the West set into the East. There is a good deal about sport in Maine, and especially about fishing. Unlike most writers on subjects very dear to their hearts, Mr. Roberts tells the bad with the good—his chapter on U. S. route one is a literary curiosity; it consists largely in a list of the signs which hide what used to be the beauty of the Maine coast. Quoddy village is analyzed, rather bitterly.

There is much more than this, and the Wyeth illustrations, all from paintings, number 14. If "Trending Into Maine" is to be bettered among the season's books of local color, the author will need to get up early and work long hours.

WARNS WORKERS

Cleveland Official Tells WPA to Quit 'Shovel Leaning.'

CLEVELAND — (AP) — J. Noble Richards, commissioner of the city recreation department, has warned about 500 WPA employes that their recreation wasn't to come in working hours on city playground projects.

"Any one falling down on the job or doing any 'sovel leaning' will be promptly removed," Richards told the group.

"I would rather see the playgrounds closed than to have the summer program follow the course of the spring program," added Miss Margaret Mulac, playground activities official. "This is your final warning."

The officials told of investigating numerous complaints of inefficiency among WPA-employed playground leaders, directors and attendants.

Mansfield Grads at Kenyon Help Set Up Student Loan Fund.

Instead of leaving the customary "bench" or "trophy case" to the school, the senior class established the fund of $750 which will be loaned in full to Kenyon seniors.

Give Raspberries Gas Treatment To Keep Them Firmer

ST. PAUL—(AP)—The gas that turns ordinary water into soda water is going to improve Minnesota's raspberries this summer, says J. D. Winter, University Farm horticulturist. Experiments in mixing carbon dioxide with air in cooling berries before shipment proved so successful last year that the state's largest raspberry growing association is going to use the equipment this year.

"The gas very definitely retards development of mould and maintains a firmer berry," Winter said. It eliminates the "sweating" which covers berries with drops of water when they are removed from ordinary cooling units. Sweating has been held a major course of mould formation. The carbon monoxide treatment is said to prevent the berries from becoming cooler than 55 degrees, thus preventing sweating.

WIFE FOLLOWS MATE TO SEA

ABERDEEN, Wash.—(AP)— All along the Pacific coast, wives wait for husbands who are at sea in fishing boats—but not Mrs. M. W. Gifford.

When Gifford decided to go to Alaska fishing; this year rather than to work in a mill, Mrs. Gifford went along. Today, she was somewhere off Alaska, a full-fledged member of the crew of a 32-foot trolling boat.

Get at the Cause of Constipation!

You know that constipation often gives you that dopey, sunken, bogged down feeling. Why not get at the cause.

If you eat what most people do—things like bread, meat and potatoes—the chances are all that's the matter with you is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean what you may think. It's a kind of food that isn't entirely digested, but leaves a soft, bulky mass in the intestines that aids elimination.

If this is your trouble, what you need is a dish of crisp, crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need, plus Nature's intestinal tonic vitamin B, and iron.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and see if the old world doesn't look a lot brighter! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

FRANCE DRAWS LAW TO FORCE ALIEN EXODUS

Drive Will Be Centered on Undesirables of All Foreign Countries.

(By United Press)

PARIS—Every one of the two and one-half million foreigners are going to find themselves being put over a frontier in the near future if they can't show good reason why they are living in France.

Determined to rid the country of all undesirable foreigners, Albert Sarraut, minister of interior, has drawn up laws which will be issued by decree, enabling him effectively to plug all of the holes through which unwanted persons have poured into the country or returned after having once been expelled.

It is estimated that 40,000 refugees have come to France from Austria and Spain during the last four months. Efforts first will be made to find all foreigners who have not complied with the regulations and are now living with friends. A system is being worked out to make this check easier. In the new laws measures also will be included for meting out punishment to anyone, French or otherwise, harboring undesirable foreigners.

For the expulsions an organization is being formed for the purpose of being certain an expelled person can't re-enter the country. Present regulations are rather lax and in some cases it is known that an expelled person has returned to the country within 24 hours after being put over the frontier. For those who are able to make their way back into France and who fall into the hands of authorities, stiffer prison terms will be provided in the future, increasing in severity each time they re-enter the country illegally.

Although trustworthy political exiles will not be interfered with, a rigid campaign will be started to rid the country of international extremists who either have been deported from other countries or who fled their homeland for political reasons.

In round figures, the latest estimates show that there are 2,563,539 foreigners living in France. Italians, totaling 887,732, far outnumber any other nationality.

The Polish and Spanish refugees are about the same, with 463,143 for the former and 410,183 for the latter. There are 211,484 Belgians living in France, 88,880 Swiss and 63,349 Russian refugees. Armenians, Germans and Czechoslovakians each total around 50,000, while the Portuguese and British number 30,000. Americans, as such are classified with the Canadians, totaling 11,467.

BRITISH AVIATRIX PLANNING 15,000-MILE WORLD FLIGHT

(By International News Service)

LONDON — Mrs. Betty Kirby Green, the British aviatrix, who took part in a record-breaking England to Capetown and back flight last year, today was planning a four-day 15,000 mile world flight.

The flight is scheduled to take place in July, and Mrs. Kirby Green will be accompanied by C. W. A. Scott, the well-known British aviator, who will act as co-pilot.

"Our route," said Mrs. Kirby Green, "will follow the prevailing westerly winds. We shall fly from London to Russia, across Siberia and the Bering Straits to America, then across the United States to New York, and over the Atlantic back to London."

A new Q-6 twin-engined monoplane air liner, designed by Captain C. W. Percival, a prominent British aircraft constructor, has been chosen by Mrs. Kirby Green and C. W. A. Scott for the flight.

Powered by two Gipsy six 220 h. p. air-cooled engines, the machine will have a cruising speed of 175 m. p. h.

Special fuel tanks are to be constructed to give the monoplane a range of 2,800 miles.

With this range, the route, never before attempted, can be flown in about four days with day-and-night flying.

The Atlantic "hop" will be started from the new landplane base now almost completed at Hattie's Camp, Newfoundland. With a good following wind, the 2,000-mile crossing to Ireland is expected to take only 10 hours.

2 DRAW FINES

BUCYRUS—Isaac Eggleston, 31 and his brother Joe, 30, were fined $25 and costs each on charge of petit larceny filed in the court of Justice J. N. Taylor, Tuesday. The brothers were charged with the theft of an automobile tire and wheel off of a car belonging to C. A. Beattie. They were committed to the county jail when they were unable to pay their fines.

BAER EXPECTS TO MEET WINNER OF NEXT WEEK'S TITLE BOUT.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Max Baer has just completed a movie short in Hollywood and is heading east to watch Louis and Schmeling, one of whom he hopes to see still a little more of in September . . . Three top-flight golfers—Johnny Revolta, Ralph Guldahl and Denny Shutehave bought permanent homes in Florida. . . . One New York magazine was so taken in with that speculator story that Tony Galento might fight the Gorilla Gargantua that it called the Hippodrome to see if anything definite had been done about it.

One guy went up to Gene and said: "Mebbe you don't remember me, Mr Tunney, but I'm the fellow who used to shine your shoes at Lake George." . . . "Quite so," replied the ex-champ, shoving out a hand . . . "So nice to see you again." . . . Giant fans have labelled Alex Kampouris O. K. . . . One bookie here predicts odds on Louis will be 15 to 5 by bell time.

Vander Meer Hurls Second No-Hit Game In First Full Year in Major Leagues

Cincinnati Hurler Re-enters Hall of Fame at Expense of Club Which Once Owned Him.

By SID FEDER, Associated Press Sports Writer.

JOHNNY VANDER MEER moved into baseball's hall of fame last Saturday. Now he owns it.

The Cincinnati Reds' 23-year-old southpaw fastballer, in his first full year in the major leagues, reached a new all-time pitching high last night in Brooklyn by hurling his second no-hit, no-run game in a row.

In all baseball history, only ten pitchers ever have turned in two no-hit games over their entire careers. None ever had come through with two in one season.

And now, along comes young Johnny, who started his baseball in a church league near his home in Midland Park, N. J., and then was given the go-by from three big league clubs, to toss two no-hitters in two consecutive appearances.

First Since 1934.

Last Saturday, pitching against the Boston Bees, he hurled the first nine-inning National league no-hitter since Daffy Dean turned the trick in 1934. Last night, he repeated against the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6-0, before a sell-out crowd of 38 748 which packed Ebbets Field to see major league night ball inaugurated in the metropolitan area.

Eight men reached base, all on walks, but Johnny pitched his way right out of every pinch. In the ninth with one out, he loaded the bases on consecutive walks to Babe Phelps, Cookie Lavagetto and Dolph Camilli, the Dodgers' "murderers' row," he got hold of his control again to finish the job. He forced a runner at the plate for the second out and got Leo Durocher to fly to center to end the game.

Except for that one inning, only one other Brooklyn runner got as far as second base against the six-foot, 190-pounder and his fireball, as he posted his seventh win of the year against two defeats.

As early as the fourth, Johnny had a hunch he might repeat his no-hit job. There must have been something in the way the Brooklyns were swinging, or possibly it was because his father and mother were in the stands, and "Pop" was seeing his first big league game.

"My arm felt as fine at the finish as it did at the start," he said after the game.

Nothing New.

No-hitters are nothing new to Johnny. During his sandlot days around home, he pitched five in one season, three of them in succession. That's when the Dodgers "discovered" him, signed him up and sent him to their farm in Dayton. At the end of that season, there was a mixup in the transfer papers, and the Dodgers had to let the young "gold mine" go.

Then followed a term with Scranton. Then he was shipped to Nashville of the Southern association. After one losing game there, he was bundled off to Durham, N. C., in the Piedmont league, where in 1936 he won 19 games, was the strikeout king with 295 "kayoes" and had a 2.65 earned run average per nine innings. That earned him the title of No. 1 minor leaguer of the year, and the Reds brought him up at the start of last season. They shipped him to Syracuse for the rest of the campaign for seasoning. And now he's back—but to stay.

Leaders Beaten.

His classy performance, which was made easier when Buck McCormick's three-run homer put the finishing touches on a four-run game winning rally in the third inning, completely overshadowed two other first-rate pitching jobs on yesterday's program. Jim Tobin, the Pittsburgh Pirates' young right-hander, hurled a five-hitter in whitewashing the New York Giants, 2-0.

The defeat didn't cut the Giants' league lead any, since Deacon Danny MacFayden duplicated Tobin's trick against the second-place Chicago Cubs to give the Boston Bees a 2-0 victory. Not a man passed first base against Danny.

In the American league, the Cleveland Indians retained their half-game lead over the New York Yankees when both came from behind to score victories. The Tribe snapped a five-game losing streak to five top the Senators, 6-4. The Yanks stretched their winning streak to five straight with a 6-4 decision over the Chicago White Sox.

Swingin' Sammy Chapman hit his seventh homer as the Athletics made it two straight over the Tigers, 7-6. Jimmy Foxx walloped No. 19 to pace the Boston Red Sox to a 7-4 victory over the St. Louis Browns

The Cardinals collected 16 hits to win a 9-7 slugfest from the Phillies.

Young No-Hit Pitcher's Biggest Thrill Came When Babe Ruth Congratulated Him.

By JIM HACKETT

MIDLAND PARK, N. J.—(AP)—Johnny Vander Meer went fishing today, "mighty pleased" over his two straight no-hit, no-run pitching performances, but happier than all get-out over personal congratulations from Babe Ruth

The Babe's "nice going, kid" and handshake was the first greeting Johnny received when he finished his 6-0 no-hitter for the Cincinnati Reds against the Brooklyn Dodgers last night.

"And the Babe has always been my idol: believe me, that was the biggest kick of all," said this quiet youngster, who hasn't changed much from the lad who personified the "typical American boy" in a baseball movie a few years ago.

He didn't know until about an hour and a half before game time that he was going to pitch.

Expected to Pitch.

"Of course," he explained, "I suspected it. But Mr. McKechnie (Will McKechnie, Cincinnati manager) doesn't tell us until an hour or two before the game.

"It doesn't make much difference, though. I just go out and pitch my own natural ball game. The fielders behind me really make it possible, anyway.

"I had every possible confidence in them all the way through last night. Take that ninth inning, now The bases were loaded and two were out. With the count two strikes and one ball on Leo Durocher. I tightened up. Ernie Lombardi, my catcher, came out and told me to throw a curve I did, but it was outside. Then Ernie told me to give him the fast ball down the middle. And when he hit it I knew right away that Harry Craft would catch it." (He did)

"After it was all over," he added. "I was in a daze for half an hour. You know, you're concentrating so much on the game, that when it's finished, you don't know what you're doing for some time."

Johnny's home town fans in Midland Park, who lifted the local curfew and stayed up most of the night to celebrate his success, really got him his turn to pitch last night They wired McKechnie that they wanted to make a "Johnny Vander Meer night" of it in Brooklyn and would he please let Johnny pitch.

Johnny helped open the New Jersey bass fishing season today with Midland Park's Police Chief Orrie Van Dyke. He'll be back with the Reds tomorrow, and expects to pitch either in Boston Monday or against the Giants in New York Tuesday.

"I can't say I'll be out there for another no hitter the next time," he said. "I'll just start out like I did tonight, and pitch my own natural game. Then we'll have to see what happens"

Incidentally, there appears to be romance afoot in Johnny's scheme of things. When he reached home after the ball game, Miss Lois Stewart was with him. She came all the way from her home in Scranton, Pa., where Johnny used to pitch, to see him play.

Keeps 'Company.'

Johnny himself, wouldn't say "yes" and he wouldn't say "no" when he was asked about it. But Papa Vander Meer, who came over from Holland when he was 17, admitted that Johnny is "keeping company."

"But," he hastened to add, "he isn't engaged and he isn't married. He's just keeping company."

Henry Wins Despite Defensive Faults

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

HENRY ARMSTRONG, who now claims a couple of world's championships, may have no defense as some of the experts claim, but any man who whips 38 opponents in succession in 17 months and knocks out 35 has all he needs, we'd say. Ask Barney Ross.

Probably no coach has been beseiged with more job offers than Don Peden of Ohio U. But Don has turned a deaf ear to all of them. Don is said to have his eye on the Illinois post when Bob Zuppke retires. His recent advancement to the athletic directorship is reported as his reward for remaining at Athens these many years in spite of more luring of propositions.

Hemsley Dons Regalia Today

Returns to Lineup to Catch Feller's Slants.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The collective breath of the New York Yankees hot on their necks, the Indians turned today to Bob Feller and Rollie Hemsley to keep Cleveland out front in the American League

This stellar battery has not functioned since Rollickin' Rollie received a fractured finger at St. Louis more than a fortnight ago. Hemsley's experience behind the bat has contributed substantially to Feller's performances on the mound Young Bob frankly prefers to work with Hemsley instead of Frankie Pytlak.

Manager Bucky Harris ordered Joe Krakauskas rookie southpaw, to the hill for Washington in today's third and last encounter of the series here

Cleveland retained its half-game margin over the Yankees by downing the Senators yesterday 6 to 4 The world champions defeated the Chicago White Sox by the same margin

Manager Oscar Vitt was elated over Earl Whitehill's mound work and the brilliant support given him by Earl Averill and Moose Solters

The Indians came from behind with a three-run attack in the eighth that terminated a five-game losing streak

Gamblers Jump Odds on Louis

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—The professional gamblers, impressed by a number of things, have jumped their odds from 8-to 5 to a juicy 11-to-5 that Joe Louis will retain his heavyweight championship in his 15-round fight with Max Schmeling next Wednesday night at Yankee Stadium.

That is somewhat disconcerting to those of us who already are well out on the Schmeling limb, even though the odds-layers lately have been dead wrong more often than right.

The previous odds of 7-to-5 and 8-to-5 were no more than the customary "feeler" quotations offered in almost any champion's favor, but this 11-to-5 money means that Louis will enter the ring a pronounced choice of the wise boys, maybe as high as 3-to-1.

What caused the firming of the figures mostly was the fact that Louis finally the other day said on his very own initiative that he intended to knock Schmeling out quick, perhaps in two rounds.

3 In Tie For Lead

Nick's Place Wins to Hand Dominion Club First Loss of Softball Season.

Sweet's Gulf Oils	1	3	.250

THREE teams shared first place in the Y. M. C. A. Commercial softball league today.

The last undefeated team's record was marred yesterday when Nick's Place walloped the defending champion Dominion Electrics, 6 to 1, at Liberty park.

Go Into Tie.

The victory enabled Nick's team to go into a tie for the lead with the Dominions and Miller's Dairys, who trimmed the All-State Freights, 4 to 2, at North park.

Gross limited the Electrics to five hits as Nick's team turned back the unbeaten club. Rayburn led the 11-hit attack for the winners with a double and two singles.

Tight pitching by Bill Moritz enabled the Miller Dairys to defeat the Freights. He struck out 14 as he permitted only six hits. Chervinski obtained three safeties for the winners.

The Tappan Stoves took possession of fourth place by stopping Sweet's Gulf Oils, 10 to 5, at Empire field. The Stoves were never headed after tallying four times in the opening inning. A feature of the game was the hitting of Jack Miles of the Oils, who cracked out a home run and two triples in four trips to the plate. Patterson and McIntyre of the Stoves also hit for the circuit.

Win Sloppy Game.

The Hartman Electrics won over the Page Dairys, 16 to 11, in a sloppy game at Prospect park. The Electrics tallied six times in the eighth to put the game on ice. Yoakum hit for the cycle as he led the Electrics with a home run, triple, double and single. Schadek of the Electrics and Sandel of the Dairys also hit four-baggers.

'Masters Win For Manager

Score Six in Ninth to Trim 'Mules,' 6 to 5.

The Schoolmasters did all right for their manager, Harold Miller, at his big day at Johns park yesterday.

Trailing 4 to 0 going into the ninth, the school teachers sent six runs across the plate to defeat the Hughes-Keenan "Iron Mules," 6-5. Miller managed the "Iron Mules" when they won city softball championships in 1928, 1929 and 1930, and the game was played in honor of him.

John Bush hurled four-hit ball for the H-K club for eight innings, but weakened in the ninth as the Schoolmasters mixed hits with errors to tally six times. Fullager relieved Bush in the ninth.

Rex secured a double and single to lead the Schoolmasters. Freddy Carver got two hits for the losers, held to six hits by Bob Davis. The fielding of Freeman, Schoolmasters' leftfielder, featured the game.

Safety Legion Award Each Week

TWO CASH AWARDS

WILL BE MADE TO DRIVERS IN THIS COMMUNITY

Why Not You?

Believing that a "pat on the back" for the good driver is long past due, we have started the "SAFETY LEGION" to recognize and reward the good drivers of this community. Won't you join us?

TWO WAYS FOR YOU TO WIN

YOU can get the cash award yourself for being a courteous, careful driver or

You can get an equal cash award for just telling us about some other good driver. Here's how it works.

THE DRIVER—

Once a week disinterested judges are going to select as the good driver of the week someone, it may be you, who has been seen performing an act of careful or courteous driving. It may be something as simple as "giving up your right of way at an intersection" or "properly parking your car on a hill."

THE OBSERVER—

Naturally, these instances of good driving must be called to the attention of the judges, so IN ADDITION to the driver's award we are going to give equal cash awards to those people who are on the lookout for instances of good driving and will report them.

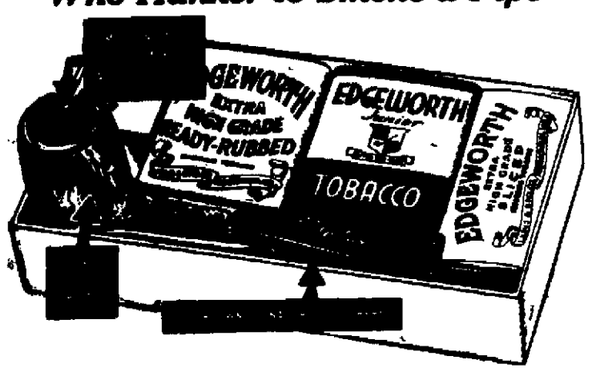
OFFER TO YOUNG MEN

Who Hanker to Smoke a Pipe



MEN: Complete smoking pleasure comes only from smoking fine tobacco, and starting under ideal conditions. Through this unusual offer we are introducing to you pipe smoking at its best.

Here's Our Offer

First: Trial Packets of each of the three styles of world-famous Edgeworth, wrapped in heavy foil. Edgeworth, famous for more than 35 years, has always contained only the finest tobacco leaf on the market. We know that you cannot make good tobacco from inferior tobacco leaf any more than you can get the pleasure of choicest porterhouse steak for a rump steak price. We gladly pay premium prices to give you a finer smoke. This costly leaf is then manufactured to the high Edgeworth standard—better tobacco, made to smoke cooler, means no tongue bite and permits you to enjoy fully its enhanced flavor, greater mildness and richer aroma.

Second: A handsome Signature Pipe (made by Linkman) that has already been "Broken In" (mechanically pre-smoked with genuine Edgeworth). It's sweet and gentle from the start. Then to give you an added interest in this pipe, we engrave your own personal signature in gold color on the stem. No pipe so personal.

Edgeworth always carries a written guarantee of satisfaction, or money refunded. Edgeworth is on sale everywhere in convenient pocket tins at 15¢.

PUSHES FIGHT

Hurley Threatens to Call on Kennedy to Aid Probe.

Senator William F. Hurley, of Lorain, threatened today to turn to Secretary of State William J. Kennedy for help in Hurley's intended investigation of the office of B. N Harris, deputy supervisor of elections of the city of Lorain.

Hurley said he would appeal to the secretary of state unless the state senate takes action on his demand for an investigation of Harris' office. Hurley's bill asking for the appointment of a three-member committee for the investigation was introduced Tuesday.

Hurley, who is seeking re-nomination on the Democratic ticket for the state senate from the 27th-29th district, which includes Richland county, accused Harris of attempting to prevent his nomination, and charged that there are irregularities in the office of deputy supervisor, held by Harris.

AUTOS PILE UP, DRIVERS SNORT, WHO'S WRONG?

It's All True to Life When Youngsters at Safety Town Learn About Traffic.

By JANE WILLIAMS

There was a crash of bumpers and fenders at the intersection of South Main and Prospect streets this morning, and cars piled up in a traffic jam as the drivers of the two colliding machines glared at each other and shouted blame for the accident.

"Yuh was drivin' on the wrong side of the road" . . . "I wuz not" . . . "Yuh wuz, too, and if yuh wanna drive an auto yuh gotta learn which is your left hand and which is your right."

But fortunately there were no casualties, the jam was straightened out by a perspiring officer in blue uniform, and traffic resumed. But not for long. A young woman—very young—with wind-blown yellow hair to match a pert yellow dress, drove a snappy blue roadster right over the sidewalk. A disdainful young man in overalls and no sign of a shirt looked at her and sniffed: "Woman driver! Always messin' up traffic." She made a snoot at him, which was the proper procedure under the circumstances.

Problem for Supervisors.

Officer Frend Boals mopped a streaming brow and Miss Virginia Calhoun, playground supervisor at Prospect park, looked bewildered as 60 kids shouted "C'mon, let's go." I jumped to one side as 25 identical blue and white roadsters got under way at one time.

Safety Town at Prospect park took on a new impetus this morning as the real-honest-to-goodness traffic light was tried out for the first time. Made by city firemen and Ernest Adams, city electrician, the six-foot traffic light is an exact replica of those in the downtown district. It operates automatically and the lights are timed with the city lights.

The autos, 25 of them, were given the the playgrounds by the Richland County Automobile club. Any kid would be willing to learn safety rules so long as he is permitted to drive one of these streamlined models which operate with foot pedals.

The youngest driver in today's class was only 20 months old and she had to have a "chauffeur" help her guide the car. Johnnie, another driver is only three, but he came into the class last year and has learned the meaning of red and green lights.

Marlyn Jean Schuler, 6, is also a second-year student in Safety Town. Marlyn knows all of the answers—and quite a few questions. I asked her name. "Guess," she said brightly, "just guess it—it's an easy name." I guessed 32 but never hit the right one.

Knows the Answers.

I asked her what the green light meant. "If you're in a car you start to drive and if you're on your feet, you start to walk," she answered. Right. And the yellow light? Marlyn wrinkled up a suntanned nose and looked thoughtful.

"If you're in a car you put on the brakes and if you're standin' on your feet—you jump back to the sidewalk."

By which it will be guessed that the six-year-old has already learned what many drivers and pedestrians never have learned.

Ann Fendrick, 3, with shining brown curls and in the smartest and briefest of frocks, regarded Safety Town with disinterested eyes. She took a turn around the town and then climbed out. I modestly applied for the job of chauffeuring her. "No," she said definitely, "I want a drink and I want to swing." Just like a beautiful woman—no yen for knowledge.

The cars, of course, are largely bait for the youngsters; the real purpose is to teach them safety from the standpoint of the pedestrian. Safety Town is laid out in four square blocks with the names of streets actually in the Prospect district. The boulevard stop signs are gay affairs with Mickey and Minnie Mouse chasing each other across the word 'STOP".

From 9 to 11 a. m. each day the pre-school children in that district gather there and learn elementary traffic rules. One of the greatest difficulties is in teaching them thing lightly or is complying with the cameraman's plea for a smile. The tiny cars are among the 25 recently purchased for Safety Town by the Richland County Automobile club to aid in training youngsters in traffic safety rules. The miniature Safety Town began its second season at Prospect Park playground Monday.

Two of Young 'Motorists' in 'Safety Town'

Ann Fendrick, 3, Woodville road, is taking her Safety Town work seriously, while Marlyn Jean Schuler, 6, 85 Wolfe avenue, either treats the whole which is their right and left sides.

Safety Town will make the rounds of the city playgrounds this summer, remaining at each long enough to teach pre-school children how to observe traffic light regulations. They are learning too, how to properly care for their cars. Many of the youngsters carry their own dust cloths and they fairly made the dust fly as they cleaned off the shining blue hoods and fenders this morning.

Safety Town will remain at Prospect park for another week and then will be taken to the Hedges grounds.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

CHAPTER XXX.

Clay Odell had a busy Monday morning at the mill, taking stock of the fire damage, conferring with his helpers, making plans to resume production as quickly as possible. Everyone deferred to his wishes without question, apparently taking it for granted that he was in complete charge and, many of them, evincing satisfaction that they had a "boss", now, to whom they could talk freely and who gave a willing ear to suggestions.

At eleven, Annie, Wardlaw's housekeeper, telephoned to say that Mr. Wardlaw was anxious to see him. Would he be home for lunch? Clay assured her that he would not fail and to tell his uncle that everything was going along all right at the plant.

When he made a hurried trip to the house, he found Romulus lying motionles sin his huge bed, his face pinched and looking smaller than ever against the crisp white pillows.

"Well?" he questioned impatiently, when Clay smiled at him from the foot of the bed. "How bad is it?"

"Not nearly as bad as it might have been," Clay answered cheerfully. "The blaze was all in Number Two stock room. What the fire didn't take, the water did. It's rather a mess right now. The insurance adjuster will be here tomorrow morning. That was a wise precaution you took to make your stock rooms small with good fire walls."

"Naturally," Romulus agreed shortly. "How did the fire start in there?"

"Defective wiring in a long extension cord is my guess. I haven't had much time to figure about that, though. I've been busy getting the place cleaned out and the machines going."

"Ump. Think you can handle it?"

"I'll do my best."

"There's nothing else left," Romulus answered fretfully. "I'll be strapped down here, God knows how long." He made a wry face. "Let me tell you, young man, you'll need to devote every minute of your time to the mill. I have to depend on you, now, whether I want to or not."

* * *

Theer was a smile in Clay's eyes, but his face and voice were serious enough.

"Then I suppose it is understood that I am in complete charge until you are able to be out and around."

"You'll have to be," Romulus grudged. "But don't get the notion you know everything. Listen to your men. They know my way of doing things. Watch your requisitions, though. They'll bankrupt you if you give them a chance."

"Thanks. I'll look after everything. Bu it will keep me going pretty much day and night I expect."

Annie stood by the table while Clay ate his lunch.

"Seein' I seem to have started somethin' yesterday," she said. "Do you mind if Iask haw Larry come to be here last night? I'm mortally sure Mr. Wardlaw didn't know it."

"No, he was blissfully unconscious," Clay grinned. "And I'm pretty nearly as bad off myself. I'm a very happy young man today, Annie. With thanks to you.

"Everythin's all right then? You sure do look a heap different."

"It's more than all right. You're the first to hear the news from me. Larry and I . . . "

"I can guess. I'm mighty glad to hear it, too. I'm glad for the two of you . Larry's one of the sweetest girls I ever laid eyes on."

"You telling me?"

"If it had to happen, maybe it's a good thing that Mr. Wardlaw went and got himself laid up for a spell. It'll give you a better chance.

"As you say, Annie, if it had to happen . . . it's almost providential. Not that it would have made much difference, though. From now on, I'm going to run a few things to suit myself. I may have to ask you to do some helpful plotting, too, You're on my side, aren't you?"

"Sure I am, Mr. Clay."

* * *

The afternoon sped away almost before Clay knew it. In the midst of all his new duties, Larry was uppermost in his mind. Larry and the overwhelming desire to see her, to make sure that all that had happened yesterday was not some dream from which he might be rudely wakened. It was a good thing, perhaps, that the Laynes didn't have a phone. It was a particularly good thing that Larry wasn't in the office. He wasn't at all sure that he could trust himself dot to make love to her.

He was whistling softly to himself as he sat at his uncle's desk, loafing through a binder of monthly reports, when the door opened and Olive Case came in with the late mail.

"Gee, you sound cheerful!" she remarked affably. "We ought to have a fire oftener."

"I'm almays cheerful when I'm busy," Clay said, with a more genial air than he usually displayed to Miss Case. "Everybody out there seemed to have settled down after the excitement?"

"Everybody but me," she replied demurely ,displaying a dimple in either of her round cheeks.

"What's the matter with you? Lost something in the files?"

"Oh, no. I wasn't going to tell you just yet, Mr. Odell, but I guess you're going to have to get somebody in my place before so awful long. . . ."

"You're not leaving us?"

Olive blushed.

"Well. . . . I guess I may as well tell you, first. I'm thinking of . . . getting married. Wilbur doesn't want to wait long."

"Wilbur? Look here, Miss Case! You don't by any chance mean it's Wilbur Green?"

She nodded bashfully.

"Good Lord! Why, it wasn't long ago that you had him married off to . . . to one of your friends. Didn't you?"

"I guess I was mistaken." Olive looked away with a dreamy light in her dark eyes. "Mr. Odell, don't you think it's perfectly possible for a person to find out they love somebody very suddenly?"

"I couldn't very well pose as an authority on that, Miss Case. But I have heard of such things, now that you mention it. Yes, I can imagine it might quite possible. But don't quote me."

"And don't you tell anybody, either. I don't want the girls out there to know yet."

"I'll be very careful. But please accept my wishes for your happiness. And that goes for Mr. Grant, too. I consider him a very fortunate man."

"Oh . . . thank you!"

* * *

Persumably, Larry should be given time to eat her supper before receiving callers, Clay decided reluctantly. He telephoned Annie to relay word to his uncle that everything was all right and that he might be a little late. He would eat down town. Pretty busy.

"I'll tell him," Annie's dry voice came over the wire. "But you ain't foolin' me. Good-by."

There was no sign of Griff about the delicatessen when Clay lingered at its front window and he decided to eat there, to have a word in private with Mr. Schloss or Mama.

"Well?" he inquired of the former, when he had the opportunity, "Is your new man still with you? I don't see him anywhere."

"Mama and I are running the shop this afternoon and Griff will be coming in soon to stay until we close tonight. I am telling you, Mr. Odell, he is one fine boy. And the work he does. I am really ashamed that I should be taking money from you for him, such a help he is. And Mama . . . she is crazy about that boy. It is almost like she had one of her own which she never done. It still is a sadness."

"I'm more than glad to hear it," Clay rejoined. "Do you really thin khe likee it here?"

"I'm sure. He laughs and jokes with us so much that I almost forget about my back. But he never stops working."

* * *

When Clay finally bounded up the porch steps of the Layne house, the front door swung open before he had a chance to ring the bell and he glimpsed Larry's slender form silhouetted against the dim light from the living room. Barely waiting to close the door behind and utterly disregarding the fact that he might be under observation, he caught Larry in his arms, lifting her from the floor.

"My girl?"

"Oh, yes!"

"It's been weeks since I saw you," he said. And kissed her again.

"I know. I've been watching. I knew you'd come as soon as you could."

"Fine. Is Mums going to kill me, or anything?"

"Silly! Of course not. I think she's mad about you . . . not at you."

"I'll face her. Where is she?"

"Everybody's out in the kitchen. Griff's getting ready to go back to the store."

Clay passed his arm about Larry's shoulders and drew her along with him. Thursting open the kitchen door, he called out cheerfully:

"Here I am, Mums! What are you going to say? Hello, Sister Muriel and Brother Griff. If you want to gang up on me, now's your chance!"

"Well, I can't say I'm surprised . . . much!" Mrs. Layne hastily wiped her hands on her apron and extended her right in greeting, but Clay disregarded it. "I'm going to kiss you," he said soberly. "I want to."

* * *

While Mrs. Layne was recovering her composure. Clay turned to Muriel with a ::You, too." The kiss he placed on her cheek was given so gently that Larry felt a quick sting of tears in her eyes. It didn't seem quite fair . . . to be so happy. Selfish.

Perhaps Griff may have felt the same way, for he said gruffly as he gave his hand to his future brother-in-law:

"I may as well give my consent, Mr. Odell, seeing you didn't ask for it. I'll say you're some fast worker . . . both of you. Nice fire, wasn't it? How's my old friend Mr. Wardlaw?"

Clay smiled. "I'm happy to say that the gentleman is resting as comfortably as any one could with a leg done up in spice and fine linen. If he knew about these auspicious circumstances, he'd be having a relapse about now. But I don't believe his heart is so weak as he was afraid of . . . or his head. The doctor found that he had given it a good bump when he fell. But he's going to be all right and laid up for quite a time, I dare say."

"It's bad when old people break bones," Mrs. Layne remarked sympathetically. "Larry, you take Mr. . . . take Clayton into the front room and make him rest. He looks tired. We'll be in later."

"I've got to be going back to my job," Griff decided, reaching for his hat that hung by the kitchen door. "Don't forget, you two, when you're in the market for a cake you want to patronize home industries. It's a specialty with Schloss and Layne. Good night."

"Griff just reminded me of something," Clay remarked to Larry, as she led the way through the dining-room. "About a wedding that's going to take place soon. You'll be surprised. . ."

"No, I won't," she declared loftily. "You're getting entirely too accustomed to bossing people."

DANCE TRAINS

Paris Likes to Travel to Strains of Rhumba.

PARIS — (NS) — Dance trains have taken France by storm and Parisian stenographers and office boys are spending their Sundays in terpsichorean revels on the shaking floors of French trains.

The "dancing-train" starts at 8 o'clock in the morning and spends the entire day covering 100 miles. But the blare of rhumba, tango and fox-trot music continues uninterrupted and the couples care nothing for the scenery.

YOU'RE A HERO · · TO YOUR SON

Most boys worship their Dad as a hero whose standards and ideals they gradually acquire as their own.

Nothing is quite so disillusioning to the clear eyes of a youngster as the sight of a man—his own father—who has used liquor unwisely.

The damage goes deeper than momentary shame.

Any man who cannot drink wisely and moderately, owes it to his son . . . his family, not to drink at all.

The coming generation will be less apt to use liquor intemperately if older people will regard it as a luxury and treat it as a contribution to gracious living—to be enjoyed in moderation.

Surely, Father's Day is an appropriate occasion for the House of Seagram, as one of America's leading distillers, to say as we have said for four years . . . "Drink Moderately".

APPEAR TONIGHT

Hogan Dance Students Stage Program at Madison.

Eighty dance students of the Marty Hogan Studio of Dance will take over the stage of the Madison theater tonight for a single performance.

The annual revue is being presented by the United Spanish War Veterans with Mrs. Clara Hogan, director of the studio, supervising the production.

New songs and dances and dance routines for groups have been worked out by Mrs. Hogan and her instructors. Fred Judd and his orchestra will provide the music.

Among the "nationality" dancers will be Mary Van Arnum in a Spanish tap dance, an unusual dance on which the youthful student has been working for two years.

GETS SENTENCE

BUCYRUS—John Morales, Galion, who was sentenced to three months in the Columbus workhouse when he pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal manufacture of intoxicating liquor, was taken to Columbus Wednesday by Sheriff Albert French.

Morales was also fined $100 and costs.

SUES FOR TAXES

Treasurer Files Foreclosure Suits Against 3 Properties.

Foreclosure actions against three properties in Mansfield and Bellville had been filed in common pleas court today by John E. Kolb, Richland county treasurer, who seeks to collect a total of $1,559 in delinquent taxes due on the properties.

The largest of the three suits is for $790, alleged due on a lot in Bellville. The action is against Frank Miller and others.

In the other actions, the defendants are Margaret McInarna, whose address is unknown, and Julia Arnold and others, owners of two Mansfield lots. The amount sought in the suit involving the Arnold property is $139, while $630 is due on the McInarna lot, the treasurer says.

It's Odd

But It's Science.

ROCHESTER, Minn.—(AP)—The Mayo clinic at first thought it was a case of cancer; but it turned out to be nothing but persimmon skins.

This is the gist of the first reported case of its kind in medical history. The record is given in the proceedings of the clinic.

The patient was a man of 63. He had an obstruction just above the point where his esophagus joined his stomach. Various diagnoses pointed to cancer.

But when the obstruction was viewed with the aid of a long tube, and a bit of it removed, it contained plain persimmon skins. All this was not the fault of the persimmons

The man had a slight narrowing of his esophagus at the point where the skins had stuck. There they rolled into a small ball. Then, according to the medical description, they operated like a "ball valve."

After the skins were removed the man went home, able to eat heartily and with no signs of cancer.

His story of stomach disorders before the persimmons indicated that he had had similar temporary troubles for 20 or 30 years.

"These are lean days"—as the WPA job-holder remarked to his shovel.

The senior member of the firm of Supply & Demand seems rather helpless while his partner is on vacation.

Some folks always like to say nice things, so a doctor comments that this has been the healthiest congress within his recollection.

Voluntary Pledge of Loyalty.

NOTEWORTHY action in connection with the Ahepa convention of Greek-Americans, held in Mansfield this week, was adoption of a resolution against foreign "isms" being tolerated in the United States and a unanimous pledge to support, in every respect, "the democratic principles of our government in its present form."

Such a voluntary pledge carries much greater weight than any expression of loyalty that may be made a requirement of law, as has been sometimes proposed for school teachers.

In the absence of evidence to the contrary it may be reasonably assumed that all American citizens with educational and ethical qualifications for teaching in schools or colleges are loyal to their country. If there is an occasional exception, as may be the case, it should not be difficult to disclose this fact and promptly dispense with the services of the offender.

Entirely free from compulsion, however, there is no apparent reason why any American child or adult should hesitate to repeat each day: "I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the republic for which it stands, one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Members of the Order of Ahepa are to be complimented for their entirely voluntary and obviously sincere expression of patriotism and loyalty to the land of their adoption. Those who esteem less highly America's guarantees of liberty and equality of opportunity to all law abiding citizens might do well to profit by the example thus provided.

Value of Ordered Training.

PROF. MAPHEUS SMITH of the University of Kansas reports in the Scientific Monthly a set of recent findings as to what college training does for a man.

In 1899, it seems, 58.2 per cent of the men eligible for places in Who's Who were college graduates. By 1934 the percentage had risen to 74.7. Self-made men of eminence sufficient to make Who's Who were 10.6 per cent of the whole number in 1899 and only 7.2 per cent in 1934.

The college man's chances of making the grade are about 160 times as great as those of "the self-made man." The reasons for this, Prof. Smith believes, are that they have learned to specialize, they have leisure, guidance and more ordered training than the men who have to depend for training and education upon themselves.

It is likely that the phrase "more ordered training" holds the real key. The college man spends four years not only in acquiring knowledge—anyone can read and acquire that—but in sorting out the knowledge, getting what he needs into usable shape. He is taught to look for basic principles first, and to relate items of information to those principles.

No Prosperity Without Advertising.

EXTENDING greetings to the Advertising Federation of America, at its recent meeting, President Roosevelt spoke of advertising as occupying a strategic relationship in the national economy. It has the responsibility, he said, of maintaining production by furthering distribution of the goods produced.

The important part played by advertising in creating consumer demand, which in turn creates employment and increases buying power, is not as generally understood as it should be.

Without the widespread distribution of all kinds of merchandise in recent years, vastly stimulated by intelligent advertising, there would have been no such thing as the low prices made possible by mass production, nor would many of the comforts and conveniences of living be available to millions of American families, as they now are.

Whether in retail merchandising or in national distribution of industrial products, advertising is an essential factor that cannot be safely disregarded.

In looking toward recovery, re-employment and a broader spread of purchasing power, the contribution that can be made by advertising should be given full consideration.

Economical Department.

WITH all the money spent by congress, it is strange that so little is given to the state department, which is today our first line of defense in Asia and Europe and of first importance in Pan-American relations. It is eking out an existence on $16,000,000 a year. That pays for our whole diplomatic and consular service throughout the world, along with activities at the headquarters in Washington. The head of the department is, in theory and practice, the head of the whole cabinet, and his job is bigger than it ever was before. But congress is notoriously stingy in that direction.

"I shall never be able to understand," writes Oswald Garrison Villard in the Nation, "why President Roosevelt himself has not demanded a large increase in the sum allotted to the department. He has not hesitated to ask for authorizations and appropriations for the navy which come to approximately $2,600,000,000. I understand that the state department has not an adequate library, is even lacking in desirable periodicals—in other words, is deprived of the tools of its trade."

He wishes every congressman knew what fine work our permanent state officials of that department are doing in Europe, China, Japan and Latin-America.

However difficult it may be, the choice must be made, as Governor Davey and Gracie Allen are on the radio at the same time.

Toledo Blade head, "Hens Leading Birds," was later noted to be a baseball caption, not an ornithological discovery.

It is also being noted that last week's primaries in the Hawkeye state didn't go the CIOWA.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — There is almost a bounty these days on hale and hearty Civil war veterans.

It all comes of the offer of the government to pay all expenses of a veteran and his attendant on a trip to Gettysburg for the 75th anniversary observance of the battle that marked a turn in the tide of the Civil war. Congress appropriated $900,000 for the affair, most of it for expense of veterans.

War department attaches privately have visions of nephews and cousins agitating Uncle Willie to desert his front porch rocking chair to take a train for Gettysburg. It is easy to understand that nephews and close friends of eligible veterans are as eager or more eager to make the trip than are the men who fought the great fight so many years ago. The average age of Civil war veterans is 94 but the average age of people who would like a free trip to Gettysburg is much less.

* * *

Credentials, Please.

MANY prospective attendants have written to the war department asking how to go about fitting out Uncle Willie for the trip and how also to get a ticket to go with him.

The war department is quite blase about it. If Uncle Willie fought on either the Union or Confederate side for even a day, a ticket and expense money will be sent him and his attendant. But it is up to Uncle Willie to send in his credentials, or have it done for him. Also he is the one to say whether Cousin Arabella or a neighboring blacksmith will be his attendant.

The war department estimates 10,000 Confederate and Union soldiers are still living and of these, 2,500 to 5,000 are expected to reach Gettysburg by June 29 for the six-day observance of the famous battle.

* * *

They Don't Like It.

VERY thinly veiled is the desire of prominent officials of certain leading farm organizations to see the downfall of a portion of the congressmen who voted for the present crop control act. The National Grange and the Farmers Union each opposed virtually all of the control features of the present farm measure.

The National Grange in particular has striven for a domestic allotment program which would "save the American market for the American farmer." In the rough, the plan would permit the farmer to raise as much of anything as he pleased but would peg the amount of his crop he could sell in the United States. Surpluses would be exported for what they would bring.

One official said the only thing his organization liked in the present farm act was the creation of regional experiment stations. That is like saying you like the commas and periods in a Shakespearean play.

These officials expect that the agitation in the midwest over the assignment of corn and wheat quotas will help put over candidates amenable to farm legislation without any restrictive quotas.

One official said that while his organization was "strictly nonpartisan," it had collected the voting records of all members of congress and was "giving these to anybody who asks."

Compromise Wage Bill Confusing

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — The wage-hour bill, in its final form, is a compromise, and the average compromise, of necessity, is unsatisfactory to both of the opposing groups who subscribe to it.

The new law is complicated. It is impossible to predict, with any certainty, how it will work out in practice.

Some principles, however, are involved, which, maybe, can be reckoned with.

* * *

IN ORE INDUSTRY

The cotton industry is particularly illustrative.

Until just after the war most cotton processing was done in the north, especially in New England.

At that juncture, it occurred to many northern textile industrialists that it would be a bright idea to establish some plants in Dixie, close to their raw material source of supplies.

They tried it, with good results. For one thing, they found labor cheaper in the southland than in New England. They had not been paying much more than starvation wages in the north, either, but southern living costs are a bit less than on this side of the Mason-Dixon line. Moreover, employerdom's terms for workers looked attractive to the south's tenant farmers. What was mighty poor pay in the north was good pay, according to their standards.

* * *

STEWART'S EXPLANATION

Thus the textile industry began to shift in a southerly direction.

The north, drained in this fashion, did not like it.

The migrating textile industrialists soon found that southern labor, though cheaper, was not as efficient as the northern quality. Naturally. It was not as experienced. And, not so well paid, it was less ambitious.

So the industrial chieftains began introducing speed-up systems in their southern mills. Their notion was to get northern production from their southern plants at much less than northern wages. They have not been altogether unsuccessful in doing it, either, though at the cost of considerable ill-feeling among labor.

* * *

HOURS

The upshot was the demand for wage-hour legislation.

A demand for reasonable hours is as justifiable as a demand for fair pay.

I myself have held newspaper jobs at what I considered tolerable pay, but at what I regarded as inhuman hours. They talk about 40 to 44 hours weekly. Why, I have been worked at the rate of 82 hours weekly.

Hours are almost more important than wages.

* * *

FLAT MINIMUM FAIR?

But to get back to northern-versus-southern differentials.

Labor has wanted a flat wage minimum for the entire country. It sounds fair. But is it?

If the same wage is decreed for the north and south alike, southern industry, which is not as efficent as northern industry (and there is no use in arguing about it, for the south admits it) will fold up, and southern industrial wage earners will have to go back to their tenant farms and get out of the industrial picture. They cannot compete with the north on even terms, and they know and, in effect, say so.

* * *

BOARDS CREATED

The wage-hour law, to be sure, creates boards to adjust differentials.

But these boards are industrial, not sectional.

That is to say, the steel board can effect adjustments between steel, cotton, tobacco, rayon, etc., but it cannot adjust as between New England and Dixie.

And regional differences are the ones which need to be adjusted.

* * *

BASIC WAGE

But, as the years pass, it goes up to 40 cents. Thus there may need to be local readjustments, and the law does not provide for them.

Without them there must be sectional unemployment.

* * *

INDUSTRIES "HIT"

What industries especially are affected?

Well—

Health Advice

Posture Vital Matter In Youth.

—By DR. ROYAL COPELAND

"SCOLIOSIS" IS a harsh word. It is the medical name for spinal curvature, an affliction which is all too common. I venture to say that if certain preventive measures were taken in early childhood, this deformity would not be so prevalent.

There are various forms of scoliosis. Some are so slight that they are easily overlooked. There may be a twist either to the right or left, causing the body to be carried at an abnormal angle. Sometimes the deformity is so great as to cause crookedness of the back, producing the appearance given the name "hump-back."

Where the trouble is only slight, it is difficult to be sure it really exists. The diagnosis is made by careful examination, giving particular attention to the posture. This is important because many forms of scoliosis, even mild forms, are frequently responsible for constipation, indigestion, headache, nervousness and other chronic complaints.

Spinal Curvature.

Just as scoliosis may result in faulty posture, it is true, too, that bad posture may produce the spinal curvature so frequently observed in young children. The very great importance of good posture cannot be overstated. It has a definite relationship to the general health and proper development of the child. The habit of sitting and standing correctly should be taught the youngster at an early age.

Too many appear to believe that the development of good posture is concerned only with the standing position. It is equally important to maintain good posture while sitting. The position of the school child is a thing to keep always in mind.

Faulty sitting posture has its part in eyestrain, round shoulders, loss of appetite, digestive disturbance and backwardness in mental growth, as well as the development of the young body. Fortunately, modern educators realize the importance of this matter. Today, school rooms are equipped with adjustable desks, so that cramped positions are avoided. The teachers know the value of posture in the erect as well as sitting positions. Any tendency toward scoliosis will be avoided by proper care.

The child with faulty posture should have the defect corrected as soon as possible. Special exercises and posture classes are recommended for these children.

WORDS OF THE WISE

Parole 'Racket' Blamed For Increase In Crime

Increase in paroles is flooding the country with a corresponding increase in crime, and habitual criminals are receiving preferred treatment while first offenders are serving out their time, according to the result of a survey of the "parole racket" presented by the American Magazine which reveals that with one exception every federal agent killed by gangsters has been shot down by a paroled convict.

"The fact is incontrovertable," the article states, "that the increase in the number of paroles has brought a corresponding increase in crime. It is becoming more and more apparent that first offenders are, as a rule, serving out their sentences with the usual time off for good behavior, while the habitual criminals, who know the ropes, are the ones who are getting the paroles.

"The result is that from our paroled convicts we get our gangsters and murderers, who get in and out of prison with startling rapidity. In the jails of one of our great industrial cities recently were 500 prisoners who had repeated 50 times or more.

"Parole is shot through with corruption. Politicians trade paroles for votes, pay off their obligations to those who put them in office by using their influence on parole boards. In many cases parole boards themselves are composed of politicians who must pass out favors. Paroles are 'fixed' with as little concern as one might go about fixing a parking ticket.

"In many instances the wrong men are set free by parole boards through the efforts of well-meaning clergymen and welfare organizations that permit sentimentality to run away with their better judgment."

To support the conclusion that the wrong men get parole, the article cites such notorious cases as those of John Dillinger, Clyde Barrows, Clyde Stevens and other paroled convicts who have killed federal agents during the past decade and who have mowed down policemen in every large community in the United States.

"A compilation of the records of 14,000 habitual and vicious criminals," the article states, "showed that 5,000 of them had been paroled one to 10 times. Among these were men who had murdered. The public believes that murderers at least are kept behind bars for life, yet official figures show that the average term for murder, because of the existent parole system, is three and a half years."

Listen, World!

America Is a State of Mind.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DANGEROUS talk these days. . . . All the old racial prejudices and hates surging up again . . . running like a fuse beneath the surface pleasantries of our contacts . . . ready to flare at a careless touch and blast our whole social order to smithereens.

Here, for example, is the sort of thing I mean. The Young American writer of the following letter is, doubtless, sincere and conscientious. She is deeply loyal to America — thoroughly convinced that the plan she presents will serve and save the country she loves. But would it?

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"Americanism is born in the home, just as a baby is born—through the union of two mortals. Some of us do not realize this fact . . . and that is why there are so many foreign isms getting established.

"There should be only one right form of marriage in America, and that is for one true American to marry another. These people who marry foreign titles are more to be pitied than envied, and they should be immediately deprived of their citizenship for having taken such a degrading step.

"Children of mixed marriages are bound to be uncertain as to which race they belong to, and they are easily recruited by an ism. I suggest these two laws:

"First — Decree that all marriage ceremonies must be performed before at least twelve witnesses. Such publicity would shame people out of marrying foreigners.

Second — Exile all Americans who do intermarry, and bar them forever from further entry into the U. S. A.

"Let all true Americans make this country of ours 'ALL AMERICAN'."

Mrs. D. R. Moore—age 25,
San Antonio, Texas.

Startling? Yet, believe it or not, these sentiments represent the attitude of thousands of other Americans, all of whom would be aghast if told that their ideas are a worse menace to this Democracy than all the foreign Isms rolled in one.

Hitler himself, in his most fanatical outbursts, never contemplated a more ruthless, perilous or stupid procedure than the program suggested by this enthusiastic young patriot. Judged by such standards, the Indians are the only TRUE AMERICANS. And that conglomerate mixture of immigrants from Holland, England, France, Spain, Italy, Russia and Germany, who founded this country and brought it to its present condition, are simply a bunch of dangerous, disloyal squatters.

The simple truth, which most of us forget, is this—AMERICA ISN'T BASED ON BLOOD UNITY . . . AMERICA IS A STATE OF MIND. Americans are not a people, in the sense that Germans or Italians or Englishmen are a people. There is no such thing as a 100% American, physically. We always have been a mixture of breeds.

But we have something infinitely finer than a common flesh. WE HAVE A COMMON VISION . . . THE NOBLEST, PROUDEST VISION THAT EVER FLAMED IN MORTAL CLAY!

And the very fact that that vision feeds on a diversity of races, is the secret of its greatness. Instead of having the necessarily limited reaction of one race, we have the potent mixture of all races, in which all bloods give their best to serve one glorious ideal.

Who is a "good American?" The man holds in his heart, and serves with his hand, the dream of Democracy. Whether his blood came from the deserts of Persia, the jungles of Africa, the steppes of Siberia—that man is a GOOD AMERICAN.

Who is a "bad American?" The man who does not believe in liberty, equality and justice for all—and who would make these United States a limited reservation for the privileged few—that man is a BAD AMERICAN . . . AND TRAITOROUS TO ALL THAT AMERICA MEANS AND HAS ACCOMPLISHED.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — This is County Fair time. And New York is getting ready for its County Fair — only it will be called the World's Fair. Out on Long Island they have torn up a lot of earth, thrown in even more to cover the shallow flats, built buildings and exploded hullabaloo. I'm not worried so much about that, because that was to be expected.

But now there is talk of doing over Broadway, the Broadway which — so the story goes — has changed so much in recent years. I don't know exactly what they are planning to do with it and, as a matter of fact, what I think will not matter. And I cannot imagine what they will do with it when they do change it, unless they throw up a bevy of modernistic buildings. You know — the things you squint at and wonder what they are.

Broadway has changed.

There is no dispute here. But, the change has come gradually; so slowly that after the scene changed you suddenly realized the old days, the old picture, the old characters were no more. Yet Broadway was still Broadway.

* * *

TRUE, the gaudy motion picture palaces took over where the legitimate theater once held sway. True, but the legitimate theater still remains, a bit on the side streets, perhaps, but nevertheless very much there, and especially so during the past season.

Broadway itself today is a dirty, gaudy street. It has always been a dirty, gaudy street. There is still the picture of honky tonks, the noise and curiosity. People milling, people talking, people hurrying, people happy and people discontented. Broadway has always been a dirty and a gaudy street—always a happy street and always a street of sorrow and disappointment. The same people, obstensibly, have pounded its pavement in yesteryears as of today.

Broadway has changed. So they say. I say again that the change has been so gradual that Broadway is still the same, despite the difference—some of it good, some of it bad.

* * *

REMEMBER when vaudeville held sway. Remember when troupers left for the hinterlands and were always glad to get back to the Palace on Broadway. They came back chuckling how good it was to get back home again, when the odds were that home really was in Wah Hoo, Neb. Broadway was changing and they didn't know it. Broadway has changed, but the place is just the same. It is still the place to which George M. Cohan, William A. Brady, Eddie Dowling and Sophie Tucker—to mention a few—and a thousand others of the day long past them come back at every opportunity.

Perhaps Broadway has changed and isn't what it used to be. But what hasn't changed? And if Broadway has changed, it hasn't changed enough to send the beat of a million feet to other streets.

You can have your World's Fair. And if I can have my cake and eat it, I'll have it, too. But, somehow or other I still think you and I would like our Broadway as it is today. It's crazier than any street in the world, and in many ways, like the mid-way at the County Fair. Let it remain so.

Timely Editorial

Diagnose, Then Operate.

It is painfully obvious that subversive elements in this country have been suffered to ply their propaganda, organize and agitate almost without restriction.

Fascists, Communists and Nazis have carried on their work, both openly and covertly, and as time goes on are becoming more arrogant in their contempt of American institutions and ways.

This country has even heard the threat from one foreign dictator that he would not tolerate any interference with the activities of his nationals in their attempts to carry on the spread of Nazi doctrines.

American youth is being exposed to the destructive doctrines of Communism in camps where every American principle is openly sneered at and derided. The German-American Bund, flaunting its swastika banners in the faces of unhyphenated Americans, has launched on a widespread program which has no place in the United States.

A seven-man committee of the house of representatives has been appointed to investigate un-American activities. When the committee presents the results of its investigation, it will be up to congress to take decisive steps to combat the growing menace, which so far has been given a free hand to undermine and destroy.—Ohio State Journal.

Respect Your Work.

Respect your work, do not engage
In labor which you think
Belittling; find work you love,
From which you do not shrink.

Because you feel it is below
Your true ability,
The work in which you're happiest,
Your best will always see.

You do not put your heart in work
You hate, know but distress
From it; to find work that you love
Is first step to success.

TRAGIC STORY OF AUSTRIAN JEWS UNFOLDED

Writer Describes Plight of Those Ousted Penniless Under Nazi Rule.

Berlin, and just 23, came into my room, and shook a paper under my nose and shouted, 'You pig-Jew, do you confess that you made all your money by fraud and swindle?'"

Here Aladar paused. His face reddened.

"So I said to him, 'No, I never defrauded or swindled anybody.'

"'You lie,' he yelled, and struck me so hard in the face I fell down. But I said again, 'No, it is not true' I have always been an honest man.'

"The next thing I knew he hit me twice so hard on the head that I could not see. Then he hit me some more and finally I said, 'Yes, I will say it.'

"He gave me a paper to sign and after a few minutes when I could see a little, I could read that it said 'first: I am a pig-Jew and I have accumulated all my fortune through swindle and fraud. Second: I therefore bequeath my entire fortune to the German Reich. Third: Inasmuch as I have no documents or identification papers'—they were taken away from us—'I have decided voluntarily to leave the country illegally by going across the frontier.'

"There was nothing to do but sign. It is not legal even in Nazi Germany to confiscate our property, so this is the way they did it, and is the way they are doing it to all the Jews in Austria. I had money. This meant I lost everything I had worked for all my life, and I had the hotel worth 30,000 schillings and two other houses, altogether about 80,000 schillings (about $17,000).

"Then they told me they were going to make my hotel the permanent headquarters of the Gestapo. They put us all to work scrubbing the floors, although they were already clean, and they beat and cursed us. It was hard to have to witness them beating and cursing my wife and old mother."

He clenched his fists and licked his lips with a dry tongue.

"Some of them went out to get the other Jews, and when night came they drove us into a herd, put us in trucks and drove off, we did not know where. We were not allowed to take a penny of money, nor any clothing except what we had on. About midnight we came to the Danube and there they put us in a boat, rowed us out to a big sandbar, put us on it and rowed away.

"It was pitch dark. The temperature was around freezing. We had no coats. Some of the women had nothing on but their nightgowns. Among us were the old rabbi, 82, and a woman 82, and another man 81, and children as young as my two-year-old. We were all town dwellers, tailors, and dentists, and midwives, and shop-keepers, none of us used to hardship.

"There was much moaning and wailing. The women and children huddled together and whimpered with fright and cold. Sometime about dawn we heard voices from a boat, and we all shouted. It was Czech fishermen. The sandbank was in Czech territory. You see the Germans had waited until night to slip past the Czech guards.

"The fishermen were good to us. They rowed us to the Czech shore and made a fire. The old women lay down and the young ones rubbed their feet. Then the Czechs notified their officials and pretty soon along came automobiles and we were taken to the jail in Bratislava. We thought we were saved, but the worst was to come.

"That night, the 17th, the Czech police took us from the jail and drove us in police cars to the Hungarian frontier. They waited a long time to be sure the Hungarian police were not about, then shoved us through the barbed wire, over the border and told us not to return.

"But they could not, without attracting attention, put us all across the border at once, so we were broken up into groups. Mine was my wife, mothers' sister and two children and a friend, and at first some of the old people. We walked that night over ten miles, all night long. We had to go slowly on account of the old ones, who kept collapsing. And I had to carry my four-year-old, while my wife carried the littlest one."

"About dawn we came to the village Karlburg in Hungary, where the Hungarian police found us. They let us lie in a shack until dark, when they loaded us into a wagon, drove us back to the Czech frontier, and then exactly like the Czechs had done it, they waited until the opposite police were absent, and shoved us back into Czechoslovakia.

"That was the night of the 18th and we were lucky because we found a haystack, and slept in it a couple of hours, but when we started at daybreak to walk further into Czechoslovakia, the police caught us. They guarded us until night, when once more they took us to another place on the frontier, and shoved us back into Hungary."

He sighed, and the crowd of Jews around us joined in a long mournful groan.

Carried Cripple, Aged.

"Even we young men were staggering by then, and the old ones were in a frightful shape. We had to half carry them. Especially that poor tailor, Emmerich Zopf, the one you see there with the crutches, had a difficult time. He's been a cripple since he was a baby."

Zopf piped up "But I'm tough. I'm a tailor. Tailors are tough."

Aladar went on: "We had the luck to find a dairy where we slept in the cow stalls. The first good sleep we had had in three days and nights. Yet somehow the Hungarian police found us, put a guard around us and that night, the 20th, they took us back to the Czech frontier, shoved us over, and said this time we had better not come back.

"Mind you, every time we were put through the frontier we had to crawl through that terrific band of barbed wire the Czechs have put up along the entire length of the Hungarian border. This time it was Czech soldiers who caught us, immediately after we had crawled through the wire.

Back to Hungary.

"They took us to the customs officials. It was always different officials. I told them to look at my children. Both of them had fever. We were all sick. My arms had no feeling in them at all from carrying the baby. But they wouldn't let us rest even for an hour. They shoved us back into Hungary that night about midnight. We moved very often that night because the Hungarians caught us again and shoved us back into Czechoslovakia before daylight.

"We found another haystack and there to our sorrowful delight we met another group so that we were 23 in all. Some of them were worse off than me. We all decided that this time we would not move but would rather die where we were. But about seven o'clock in the morning some mounted Czech police came along and ordered us out.

"We said, 'we can't go any further.' But they rode their horses at us, so we got up and they drove us along like cattle in front of their horses, until we got to the frontier, and this was the first time that we had been taken there by daylight, so this time the Czech police found the Hungarian police facing them across the barbed wire.

"We pleaded with them and told them to look at us. We did not look like human beings any more, and the sight of the old ones was enough to make you cry. It did no good.

"The Czech police ordered us to crawl through the wire to Hungary. The Hungarion police shook their weapons and yelled that we dare not take a step further. It looked like we were all going to die there, men, women and children, like soldiers in wartime, hanging dead in the wire."

Please – Let Us Live Here!

Facing 200 homeowners with a plea for tolerance, a young Chinese couple, native-born citizens of Portland, Ore., have moved into a modest house in Chicago's northwest side for a trial to prove that they are "good neighbors." When told by an alderman, spokesman for a crowd outside, that they were unwanted, the young couple, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Fung, stepped to the porch and Mrs. Fung addressed the assemblage thus: "My husband and I are Christians as yourselves. Both of us are university graduates. Both our fathers were Baptist ministers. We promise to live a quiet life among you. If you find us annoying we will move away." The Fungs, who have two children, are pictured outside their home.

warded to Washington, he said.

Wierman pointed out that the grade elimination projects are being financed and supervised entirely by the federal government from a special grade elimination fund created recently by congress.

The only cost that the city would have to meet, he said, would be for damages and right-of-way. Part of this would also be paid by the railroad.

Hopley pointed out that the Lincoln highway is one of the most heavily travelled highways in the state at the point where it passes through Mansfield.

Meanwhile, the state highway department today asked for bids on improvements to 15 strips of highway in Richland, Crawford and Huron counties at an estimated cost of approximately $35,000.

The contract will be awarded June 24 under one project, with the specifications calling for completion of the work by Aug. 15.

The proposed Richland county improvements include resurfacing of 5.26 miles of route 30-S west from Ontario; four miles of route 13 north from the Mansfield reformatory; five miles of route 96 near Olivesburg; and 6.37 miles of route 61 between Shelby and Plymouth. Proposed resurfacing in the county would total about $14,000.

In Crawford county, bids are requested on resurfacing of five miles of route 182 west of Bucyrus; about eight miles of route 19 north and south of Bucyrus; two miles of route 30-N west of Bucyrus, and approximately two miles of route 30-S, on the Galion-Marion road.

DISSOLVES OWN LABOR GROUP

Westinghouse Drops Industrial Relations Committee in Voluntary Move.

Voluntary dissolution of the industrial relations committee of its Mansfield plant was announced by Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company today, on receipt of word that such dissolution had been approved by the National Labor Relations board in Washington.

International News Service dispatches to The News-Journal from Cleveland said that the board's approval was announced by James P. Miller, regional NLRB director. Miller said dissolution of the committee was agreed to at an informal conference of Miller, company officials, committee heads and officials of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, a CIO affiliate.

Company officials also announced today receipt of the board's approval, and said they would post a bulletin in the plant today, announcing the dissolution of the committee and its disestablishment as a collective bargaining agency for company employes.

Initial complaint against the committee as representative of the workers was filed by the UERW, dispatches said, and a hearing had been scheduled for June 20. Since the matter was settled on a friendly basis, Miller said, no hearing will be held.

The industrial relations committee was composed of elected workers from all departments of the plant, who represented employes in dealing with the company on wages and working conditions.

Bass Fishermen Line Streams For Season's Start

With reels well oiled and plenty of flies and plugs in the old tackle box, hundreds of Richland county anglers today went to their favorite fishing haunts as the season for black bass opened.

They joined a vanguard of the vast army of more than half million fishermen who before the season closes next May 1, will catch 2,500,000 bass in Ohio lakes and streams, conservation department officials estimated.

The law allows any bass to be taken over 10 inches in length, although fishing licenses stipulate a 11-inch length. Conservation department officers explained that the licenses were printed before the new regulation was decided upon.

A limit of five fish per day for any angler has been established as the maximum catch.

Three distinct species may be caught during the open season. They are distinguished as the large mouth, the small mouth and the Kentucky spotted bass ,although the latter classification is rather scarce in this state.

Jury Turns Down Relatives' Suit to Share in Estate.

After a trial which lasted three days, a jury in common pleas court late yesterday upheld the will of the late Willis Egner of Bloominggrove township. The jury deliberated more than two hours.

A group of relatives of Mr. Egner, including nieces, nephews and a sister, sought to break the will on the grounds that Mr. Egner was mentally unable to draw up the will in which he bequeathed most of his estate to a brother, B. W. Egner of near Greenwich, the defendant in the case.

The will involved in the suit was drawn up last August while Mr. Egner was in the Willard hospital, one month before he took his own life by hanging. The estate consists largely of two farms in Bloominggrove township.

The defendant was represented at the trial by Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott and Atty. R. E. Hutchison. Attys. John C. O'Donnell and W. J. Bissman represented the plaintiffs.

HIDDEN LETTER CHARGE STIRS BLACK HEARING

Accusations Made Against Tax Commission in Employe's Ouster Fight.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Charges that tax commission attorneys sought to conceal a letter contradicting their contentions enlivened today hearing of C. Elbert Black's suit seeking to recover his job as chief of the commission's gasoline tax division.

Paul M. Herbert, attorney for Black, told the court the commission lawyers had the original letter, of which he had introduced a copy, advising a Dayton firm that C. G. Wilson was "now head of the gasoline tax division."

Black charged he was dismissed for failing to do political work for Gov. Martin L. Davey while the commission contended he was fired to effect economies and insisted the job was not refilled.

Judge Henry L. Scarlett finally told the commission's attorneys "this is going a little too far" and ordered them to take the stand and be questioned. They then produced the letter but said they had intended to introduce it themselves later.

Rejects Motion.

The court overruled a commission motion for dismissal of the case and the defense called Commissioner Walter W. Mitchell of Youngstown as its first witness.

Shortly before Black had taken the stand in his own behalf, two witnesses summoned by the former gasoline tax division head brought about the possibility of a separate investigation into their charges.

Mrs. Genevieve Perry and Mrs. Margaret Ehrenfeld, employes in the gasoline division, testified they were approached by Charles O. Wilson, who Black contends took over his duties after his job was abolished. They said Wilson called them into his office and said they might "have to answer to the tax commission" if they said Wilson was head of the gasoline division.

Judge Scarlett said he would wait until Wilson appeared on the stand before opening an investigation into their charges.

Black also testified that Miller, now commission chairman, told him "the governor doesn't give a damn about civil service." He said Miller made the statement when the tax commissioner showed him a list of employes in the gasoline division who were to be fired.

"Did you ever collect money politically?" Defense Attorney Druggan asked Black under cross examination.

"Yes," answered Black. "Not while under civil service though."

"The morals are the same, aren't they?" said Druggan.

Black's attorney objected and Judge Scarlett refused to allow Black to answer.

HITS ACCURACY OF RECORDS IN ASHLAND EXAM

State Examiner Makes $1,000 in Findings Against County Office Holders.

ASHLAND—In a report of the public offices in Ashland county, issued by H. C. Belt, state examiner, findings of $1,081.19 against officials were made.

The findings were attributed mostly to the lack of accuracy in the keeping of public records, according to the report.

Largest finding was made against H. O. Faber, Ashland county treasurer, for $713.36. The finding was attributed to shortage on daily statements, shortage in collections and shortage in daily certifications.

In this connection it was pointed out that there had been a lack of accuracy in the preparation of tax receipts, with errors in crediting collections on the duplicate.

Deficit Paid Up.

The second largest finding was made against Charles A. McBride, clerk of courts, for $229.01. It was announced that McBride, on finding that the deficit existed, had made it up.

In the report, three findings were made against the county for sums owed to individuals for services or commodities rendered, and several other minor items.

Items on which there had been findings, and which had not been made up at the time of examination, included: City of Ashland, $81 for board for city prisoners in the county jail; W. W. Barnhill, former county commissioner, $9.56 for excessive salary; Glenn Calhoun, $20, for illegal payment on animal claim; Marshall T. Devor, $25 attorney fee for defending indigent prisoner; S. C. McKinley, clerk of the health board, $25 for excessive salary drawn; Perrysville village, $25.20 for boarding village prisoners in county jail; Fred W. Sigafoos, $56.75 for tuberculosis treatment of his wife; Sheriff H. F. Wallett, $23.71 shortage; Harold Welsh, $35 for defending indigent prisoner.

Officials commended in the report for efficient service included Carl W. Koegler, county dog warden; A. H. Sutton, former secretary of the county fair board; F. E. Wicks, county auditor; S. H. Boffenmyer, county probate judge, and former Probate Judge B. W. McCray.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

ONE morning I went to borrow a farm tool from my neighbor. I found him hard at work, weeding his garden. The carrots, onions and tomato plants looked fine. I suggested that he must have planted early. "Yes," he said, "them seeds I put in the ground about the middle of April. They're thinner than they oughta be—maybe the dirt was a bit too cold."

He showed me some red Delicious apple trees and wondered why the young crop had set so unevenly. Many other trees, such as Wealthy and Golden Delicious were loaded. We both noted, in these particular varieties, the apples were set on this year's growth of wood.

On the side of another tree I heard a sharp buzzing sound and saw a dark brown mass of bees, like an inverted cone, hanging from a branch. We walked within two feet. I could smell the familiar honey scent and see some individual bees fly away, which left a vacant space, wherein was visible another wall of moving life.

It was a swarm of bees that had separated from the mother hive, that very morning, to seek and build another home, that it may be well established before the cool, workless days of winter come.

There was power there—a weight sufficient to bend a good sized branch until it touched the lower ones for support; a bulk so great that it would fill a six quart pail to overflowing.

"A swarm of bees in June is worth a silver spoon . . ." the farmer said. "I'm going to ask my son if he wants this swarm."

A few moments later I saw the young man hunt up an old split basket and an improvised hive and start for this particular tree. He said, "They won't sting now. They've eaten all the honey they could hold before they left. Hungry bees are dangerous and do the stinging. Watch them fall into my basket."

Sure enough. With a few calm and deliberate movements he shook the branch and the bees dropped into the crude inclosure. He then tilted the basket toward the little opening in the hive, and soon I saw a few crawl in, then more, and finally a column even broader than the opening. He watched until he saw the queen approve, and crawl in too. Then he placed a broad board upon the top with a stone to hold it down, and left.

HEAVY BUYING OF GOLD FAILS TO BUOY STOCK

Dollar Devaluation Murmurs Not Taken Seriously; Market Mixed.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market exhibited mild rallying tendencies in spots today, but numerous issues duplicated their standstill performance of the past several sessions.

Further heavy buying of gold in London failed to buoy the yellow metal stocks to any appreciable extent. Dollar devaluation murmurs still were heard in the boardrooms, but responsible financial quarters expressed the belief boosting of the gold price was hardly likely just now.

Delayed adjournment of congress caused many traders to maintain neutral market positions. Bonds and commodities were mixed.

Those watching building material shares noted the estimate of the engineering news-record placing this week's construction awards at 38 per cent below last week and 64 per cent under the corresponding period a year ago. For the first 24 weeks of 1938 building contracts were up 2.1 per cent above the like time in 1937.

Attention was given a forecast of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics that industrial production, following a further decline during the summer months, should pick up in the latter part of the year, but not at a rapid rate.

"FEELS LIKE NEW WOMAN AT 70"

Clogged Intestines Added to Rheumatic Pains and Other Torture

Says "World's Tonic Seems Too Wonderful to Be True"

"It just seems too wonderful to be true for a woman past seventy like me to feel so young and new since World's Tonic has been giving my poisoned intestinal tract such a thorough cleansing. I'm doubly grateful because for years I have been suffering from numerous ills all brought on through carelessness about constipation. In all the years you folks have been offering World's Tonic to suffering humanity you must have done worlds of good if my personal experience is any measure. To find relief at my age after all the medicines I've tried without desired results is like a new lease on life," says Mrs. Ella Poorman, of 214 James street, Akron, Ohio. 'I'm glad to indorse a medicine with the merit World's Tonic proved to me. Mine was a stubborn and obstinate situation I tried all sorts of medicines but World's Tonic just about fills the bill. Any person who has suffered the tortures of rheumatic pain will understand my joy at relief. Pains would shoot from one place to another and were especially severe in my shoulders It was almost impossible to raise my arms above my head I can't remember how long it is since I enjoyed a meal without gas and stuffiness or headaches and dizzy spells afterwards Sleep was a big problem too and of course all this was keeping my nerves in a jumpy state I was pretty much discouraged trying to find relief.

"Through some friends I heard of World's Tonic so I tried it and what a delightful surprise I got It relieved my constipation and from that day on the other things started improving I kept right on with World's Tonic until my stomach is feeling fine. The rheumatic pains are all gone and I m eating now without such frightful distress afterward I can use my arms as well as ever and sleep well at night, getting up in the morning feeling stronger and better It certainly is a relief to be rid of that burden of suffering."

If you are suffering as was this lady you shouldn't be skeptical without giving World's Tonic a chance to prove its merit Why don't you do that today?

World's Tonic contains a goodly portion of roots and herbs gathered from various parts of the old countries where many of us and most of our ancestors originally came from

Senate, House Deadlock Looms Over Ohio Relief Bills

TWO CHAMBERS READY TO PASS OWN MEASURES

Assembly's Leaders See Need for Compromise Parley to Forestall Delay.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The first bill on the senate relief program, permitting local governments to issue notes and borrow up to 90 per cent of anticipated proceeds in 1938 and 1939 from beer and liquor permit fees, was passed, 28 to 1, today. It passed as an emergency measure.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Passage of separate relief programs by the Ohio senate and house was practically assured today, but prospects of a deadlock over differences immediately arose.

Leaders of both houses, expecting to adjourn tonight for the week-end, feared it would be necessary to appoint a conference committee to work out a compromise.

The relief programs drafted by the senate in caucus and by a 13-member house committee were somewhat similar, but blocs in the senate and house disagree on details.

Gets Informal Approval.

The senate program was approved informally by the senate in an unofficial meeting, while Speaker Frank Uible in conferences obtained approval of about 90 per cent of the Democrats for the house committee's plans.

The house program provides:

1—Extension of the utility, admissions, beer, beverage, malt and wort taxes through 1944 and issuance of bonds in anticipation of the estimated $21,000,000 in revenue.

2—Authorization for local governments to issue bonds in anticipation of delinquent tax collections, and

3—A state relief administration to regulate relief expenditures.

The senate program embraces principles of the above three proposals in addition to the following two bills:

Authorization for local subdivisions to issue notes in anticipation of two years' revenue from the liquor and beer permit fees, and

Permission for subdivisions to transfer relief funds to other subdivisions.

At Odds Over Extender.

The major difference is over the tax extender proposal. President pro-tem Keith Lawrence of the senate said he believed the senate would insist that the taxes not be extended beyond 1940. The two year yield would be about $8,000,000. Rep. William McCulloch, Republican floor leader in the house, said he believed most of the house Republicans would vote against an extension through 1944.

Furthermore, the house committee proposed that the state relief administration be supervised by a director. The senate caucus stipulated that the state auditor be placed in charge of the administration.

Both programs are designed primarily to care for the indigent during the remainder of this year. The cost has been estimated at $13,000,000 to $17,000,000.

A NEW PASS TRICK

ROANOKE, Va.—(AP)—A bird in the hand is worth two passes on the bus to a family living outside Roanoke. Policeman J. P. Cralle said he saw a passenger alight here from a suburban bus, attach his pass to a homing pigeon, and send it back for other members of the family to use.

It's probably the Rooseveltian influence, but several persons who have asked for the popular book of the day, "R. F. D." at the library and book stores, have unconsciously asked for "F. D. R." The difference being that the book's title stands for Rural Free Delivery while the latter stands for—well, any school boy should know what F. D. R. stands for.

The landscape at the Woodland reservoir, south of the city, has been changed from that of a stretch of African bush to a well kept park in the last few weeks. James Herlihy, superintendent of the water works department, has had the brush and weeds cut and has landscaped the ground around the reservoir. Residents in that section are particularly grateful because seed from the weeds have been playing havoc with well kept lawns.

County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott, who leaves Saturday on his annual fishing trip to Canada, plans to do a little investigating of the veracity of fishing guides when he gets into the wilds. "In past years, when I've failed to catch fish in July, the guides have always told me that I ought to have fished in June when they were biting," Marriott said. "This year I'm going in June, and if I don't have any luck this time, the guides will have to think up a new excuse."

In addition to being a pretty good patrolman, Gene Hartnett is a good softball player. But his softball playing brought him some embarrassment yesterday. Playing with an old-timers' team in a special game at Johns park, Hartneet stole a base in one of the innings. It is not difficult to imagine that the crowd quickly sensed the opportunity to razz the officer for his "thievery." Gene took it smiling, although his team lost.

KNOX COUNTY BOY HANGED

Youth, 14, Accidentally Kills Self While at Play.

MT. VERNON—(U.P.)—The body of Sherman Hampshire, 14, Knox county farm boy, was found hanging from a tree on his father's farm today. Coroner C. L. Harmer believed the boy's death was accidental.

Sherman's sister, Mary, 10 found the body. She said her brother previously had pretended he was hanging himself from the tree by a hitching strap. The coroner believed he lost his footing while playing with the strap.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hampshire.

BUILDING CONTRACTORS ACT TO ORGANIZE, "POLICE" INDUSTRY

Mansfield building contractors today had taken steps towards "policing" operators in their industry who are said to be evading the workmen's compensation laws of Ohio.

Meeting at the Southern hotel last night, they named a committee of three to formulate plans for a city-wide organization of contractors, and it was indicated that the chief aim of the group would be to induce all contractors who are employers, to abide by the Ohio Industrial commission laws in order to bring about greater safety in building construction and reduce the trades' insurance rates.

The committee was named at the close of the meeting at which J. W. Beall, employers representative of the Ohio Industrial commission, told the 50 building men present, "you write your own ticket—rates are made on the job and not in Columbus."

"Follow up any accident, no matter how small," Beall urged, "find out how it happened and why. Assist the worker by selecting him for the job and you will help yourself and the commission."

Those named by Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, who acted as chairman at the meeting, to draw up plans for an organization were Charles Hoffman, Bert Brandt and John W. Ness.

T. P. Kearns, superintendent of the division of safety and hygiene of the industrial commission, told the group, "You fellows are responsible for the building industdy and for any increase in your insurance rates."

"You will never get anything accomplished by wishing and hoping, but only through organized, concerted effort," Kearns said. "Organize to stop these accidents, then you can all enjoy the benefits of a lower insurance rate."

Other speakers from the commission were Ben Godfrey, special investigator of construction operations and Harry Sain, special representative in the division of safety and hygiene.

Discussion of a proposed building code for Mansfield was deferred until the next meeting of the contractors and builders which will be held next Wednesday in the C. of C. assembly rooms.

WAR FORGOTTEN AS ARMY FACES BIGGER MENACE

Japan's Fliers Drop Tools to Soldiers, Chinese Farmers Repairing Broken Dykes.

(By United Press)

SHANGHAI—Japanese aviators dropped food and tools from their airplanes today to Japanese army units trapped in the spreading Yellow river floods.

Now the floods affect the country north as well as the Yellow river area. Pouring rains continued all along the river basin. The Japanese were fighting for their lives, all thought of their war against the Chinese forgotten. They charged that Chinese guerrillas, familiar with the country, were breaking dykes at new points as well as harrassing isolated Japanese units.

The airplane service was inaugurated today both to feed trapped Japanese units and to drop tools with which they and the Chinese farmers along the river valley could make what was admittedly almost a hopeless effort to repair the dykes.

Thousands Perish.

Hundreds of square miles of country were flooded, uncounted thousands of Chinese and Japanese had been drowned or were isolated on occasional high points. The main hope for life among the trapped Japanese lay in the airplanes which dropped food and tools in gunny sacks.

Chinese continued to charge that Japanese artillery had weakened the Yellow river dykes and had played a big part in loosening the flood waters.

Japanese angrily denied the charges. They said that the dykes were 40 feet high and often 600 feet thick. They pointed out the predictions made for months past that, in an emergency, the Chinese would cut the dykes and send against the invaders a weapon more terrible than any formal agency of war.

Foreign missionaries began to organize relief for the thousands of homeless Chinese refugees who fled from the floods, and to organize at the same time great gangs of men to repair the dykes.

Chapman was received at the institution Oct. 23, 1937 from Cuyahoga county and is under sentence from one to 20 years for auto theft. He is one of four trusties who fled the camp June 9. The others are still at large.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said the usual two years will be added to Chapman's sentence as penalty for his escape.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Those Complaining of Newspapers Usually Are Slightly Screwy on 'ism'

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—In a country which has a free press, anyone who has anything to say may become a publisher. There are practical difficulties, to be sure, but the privilege is there, and it is incorrect to say that the owners of the existing newspapers of the familiar and standardized American pattern possess a monopoly of that privilege.

That there are individuals who have a message, or think they have one, who remain mute for lack of paper in which to express their ideas, is due largely to their own lack of initiative.

Certainly there are hundreds of persons in Russia, Germany and Italy today who would manage to get their beliefs down on paper and into circulation if those countries offered the same freedom that exists here.

The costs of publishing a standard paper, even in a small city, are enormous, and the enterprise calls for specialized ability in a number of departments — news, editorial, advertising, circulation, purchasing and so forth — which should work together.

* * *

But a publication intended merely to express a view need not be so complex. In Barcelona, about three years ago, there were, as I recall the number, 80 publications arguing all shades of political opinion, most of them thin sheets without journalistic luxuries, whose editors wrote with perfect abandon.

They weren't getting rich, but they certainly were laying it on the line daily, twice weekly, weekly or as often as they had anything to say or the price of publication. They were constantly disappearing and reappearing, and probably not even a news dealer could have called the roll at any given time.

I have found those who complain most bitterly about supervision and over-or-under emphasis in our papers usually are slightly screwy on some "ism" or hatred, and claim a right not only to publish violent communications, but to spot them outside, as we say, preferably with a banner head.

They want to edit the existing papers, and often, when some scurrilous and libelous contribution has been garbaged, there will follow a squawk of suppression and a demand for censorship or state regulation, as though that would provide a square deal for all opinion.

* * *

A single day's mail of a metropolitan editor will charge that the editor is a tool of Wall Street and Moscow, Hitler and Stalin, the Pope, the Jews, the New Deal and the Liberty League. He is an enemy of labor if he prints a piece plainly reporting some skulduggery by some politician or racketeer who is exploiting a union, and the same mail will accuse him of encouraging the Reds when he argues for free speech in some troubled center.

I receive many small communications which, if printed in the standard daily papers at all, let alone in Page One position, would inflame mobs to commit atrocities against masses of innocent Americans.

The screwball simply has no sense of truth, and will write the most dreadful lies and superstitions as fact and fly into a rage if the editor, with a decent sense of responsibility, does not give him prominent space in which to incite persecution of those whom he hates.

I know our press is imperfect, but I know, too, that our daily standard papers are models of objectivity, conscience and fairness as compared with the letters and the "ism" publications which denounce it for sins apparent in themselves.

Hollywood Speaks---

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Movietown's reputation as a center of unpredictable ironies should be enhanced by the story of Kay Francis' recent pictures.

Kay was on the famous list of "box-office poison" names put out by those eastern exhibitors. A couple of years ago she rated very well indeed. What probably started her decline was an epic called "The White Angel." In gratitude for her consistent drawing power, her studio put forth its most supercolossal efforts — big production, big exploitation campaign, big budget, big director. "The White Angel" (need it be said?) was not Miss Francis' most profitable picture.

Some weeks ago the star, to work out her contract, was assigned to a couple of minor pictures. She was "in the doghouse" as far as the studio was concerned, but she didn't balk at what they handed her to do. One of those pictures, recently finished, is "My Bill."

* * *

It didn't cost much. It isn't a big-name picture. But it's likely to be a surprise hit. And wouldn't it be funny if Kay's "doghouse" picture clicked where a super-super couldn't? And funnier if they wanted Kay to keep on making pictures after her marriage this fall? And still funnier if Kay said "No, thanks"?

That, strangely, is what she would be apt to reply. Judging only by her past indifference to all the things that keep the average star in a whirl—unkind criticisms, publicity, and the outward trappings of stardom—Miss Francis will be happy to take her pile of picture money and say goodbye to the screen.

* * *

It was after the "sneak" preview of "Little Miss Thoroughbred" at a downtown theater. A gentleman connected with the picture was eavesdropping on the paying customers, hoping to hear reaction comments. He reports this remark from a little old lady: "It's too bad they have to show one terrible picture with every good one, isn't it?" His heart sank, but further listening revealed that the lady was praising "Thoroughbred" and condemning the house's regular feature — a very expensive, star-studded, so-called "A" picture.

Husband Refuses to Divorce Mate

By VIRGINIA LEE

DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: Two years ago I met and married a young man whom I did not love, but I was young and lonesome; at least, that is the best excuse I can offer for my foolishness.

"Well, the inevitable happened. We were not married two months before I discovered that I could not go on living with my husband, so I packed my things and left.

"I met my husband twice after that and he said he still loved me and wanted me to go back to him, but the feelings were and are not mutual. He refuses to get a divorce, and says if I try to get one he will contest it.

"I came here to keep out of his reach and now I have met and fallen in love with a young man who I am sure if I were free to marry, would make me very happy, but marriage under the circumstances is impossible.

"What would you or your readers do? WONDERING."

I think the only thing to do is to ask your husband again to give you a divorce. If he won't, bring action anyway. If you tell the court exactly how things are with you I imagine you will gain your freedom, although you may win a lecture from the judge on your thoughtlessness and cruelty in marrying a man whom you did not love and then packing up and leaving when things did not suit you.

You can realize how your husband felt if you will just imagine this man you now love leaving you after two months of marriage on the plea that he only married you because he was lonesome.

You see, when you marry you have to think of the other fellow as well as of yourself. Even youth and loneliness do not excuse such behavior, you know.

* * *

JENNY: Wait for one year and you will be of age. If you still are in love with this boy, plan to marry him. He is right in what he says. Nevertheless, different nationalities have different customs, and it sometimes is a little difficult for two people to adjust themselves when they marry. Both must have tolerance and be willing to learn the other's ways. It has been done many, many times, however, with perfect happiness resulting.

Brush Up on Etiquette for Important Dates.

What About a Good-night Kiss?

One of the big evenings in your life. Why spoil it all at the last moment by puzzling about a good-night kiss?

Show you've really grown-up poise. Refuse him with a laughing "Not tonight, Jim." And don't fear he won't ask you for another date. He will—if you've practiced the smooth, friendly manners that make men proud to be seen with you.

Little things are important. Be feminine. Let your escort open doors, hail taxicabs, get punch for you at a dance, give the order to the waiter in a restaurant.

At the movies, wait in the lobby while your date buys tickets, instead of barging up to the ticket window with him.

At a dance, suppose your old friend Bill pops up and asks you for a turn. Introduce him to your escort, say "Do you mind?" before you sail away.

Know the simple rules of etiquette that bring popularity. Follow our 32-page booklet on good form for dances, movies, clubs, restaurants, automobiles, travel.

Send 10c for your copy of Etiquette For Young Moderns to The Mansfield News-Journal, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address, and the Name of booklet.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

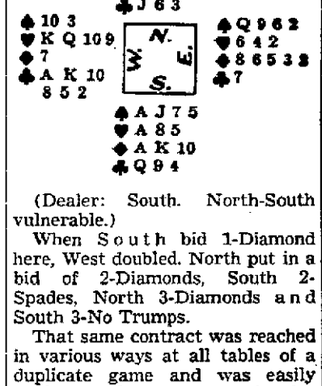
"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T TRUST THEM

Non-vulnerable opponents are none too trustworthy. They are in a position to take risks of considerable degree in order to try to fool you into mis-guessing the true situation. It doesn't pay to base your own plans and activities too much on information their bids seem to give.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

When South bid 1-Diamond here, West doubled. North put in a bid of 2-Diamonds, South 2-Spades, North 3-Diamonds and South 3-No Trumps.

That same contract was reached in various ways at all tables of a duplicate game and was easily made at all except one. At this table, when the club 8 was led South decided that for his double West held possibly four hearts and at least three spades to the queen.

The first club trick was won with the 9 and the diamonds A and K cashed. When West showed out on the second round of diamonds, South, reading West for the spade Q, led the spade J, but to his surprise East captured the trick. Having no clubs he switched to a heart and South, completely in the dark then as to West's holdings, ducked. West won and ran his remaining clubs. If South had disregarded the double and played in the normal way, he would have made the contract.

Two Exciting Thrillers

THEATER

THE 20th Century-Fox unit that has been working in Callendar, Ont., on the third picture in which the Dionne quints are starred, is due back in Hollywood July 1. Jean Hersholt who has worked with them in all of their pictures can't tell them apart . . . Tyrone Power, about whom this corner has yelped because of miscasting him so many times, will next appear as Jessie James after completing "Suez." Why not the role of Goliath for him after that? . . . John Barrymore goes over to 20th Century for one picture, "Hold That Co-Ed" in which he'll work with George Murphy, Marjorie Weaver, Joan Davis and Jack Haley . . . "Suez," incidentally, will be one of the few expensive pictures made this season. It has a budget of $2,000,000. Besides Power, Loretta Young and Annabelle are in it.

* * *

New Angle Found.

"Hunted Men," shown at the Madison this afternoon, is discontinued tonight when the Marty Hogan dance revue takes over the stage of that theater, but the picture resumes again on Friday and continues through Saturday. It is a gangster story with a new angle; a smooth gangster, seeking sanctuary from the police, worms his way into a respectable home, holds its members at the point of a gun after they find him out and when police surround the house, shoots it out with them, leaving members to take care of themselves as best they can. Lloyd Nolan, Mary Carlisle and Lynne Overman head the cast.

* * *

Parole Violators.

Sylvia Sidney and George Raft, last seen together in "Pick Up," are teamed again in "You and Me," current at the Ohio. Both of these stars are under contract to Paramount and they also have in common the fact that each of them has walked out of the studio at various times because they disagreed with the boss about roles. Miss Sidney doesn't make many pictures a year because of what the studio terms "Temperament" but what she does make is good, as witness "Mary Burns, Fugative," "Ladies of The Big House" and "Fury." Their current picture deals with the edict of the law that persons on parole can't marry and what happens when one breaks that law.

* * *

Old Home Week.

"Held For Ransom," opening at the Majestic tomorrow, sounds like old home week for some of the old time favorites. In the cast are no less than five players who were once leads and at least one of them was a star. Blanche Mehaffey, once touted as coming beauty of the screen, plays opposite Grant Withers and Jack Munhall. The latter, once a star, is gradually working his way back to character parts and is seen frequently in minor roles. Then there are Kenneth Harlan, former leading man, and Walter McGrail, who also played leads before he went into Westerns. The plot is a timely one, built on a kidnaping and demand for ransom. The second feature is a Western, "The Overland Express" with Buck Jones.

* * *

Cantor Goes To Town.

Eddie Cantor falls asleep on a movie set and wakes up in Bagdad in "Ali Baba Goes To Town," which the Ritz present Friday and Saturday. He has some amazing experiences with Magic carpets, lovely harem beauties and the colorful natives of the mythical city. Tony Martin and June Lang are a romantic pair of lovers and Louise Hovick has plenty as the Sultan's lady friend. Other players seen in this Cantor musical comedy are Roland Young, John Carradine, Alan Dinehart, Douglas Dumbrille and Virginia Field. Music and dancing girls are major factors in the comedy. Fred Scott in "Fighting Deputy" is the additional feature.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

WE FOUND not only Faith in the nursery, but Junior and Roderick as well. The two boys threw themselves upon Dicky as soon as they saw him, and he let them clamber all over him. He "roughhoused" them in the way they love before he put them aside for the moment and went over to the play pen where his idolized little daughter sat enthroned among her toys.

"Well, Sweetheart!" he addressed her cheerily. "Do you know your daddy?"

I felt Katherine's tense grip upon my arm, and knew that she was wishing, as I was, that he hadn't asked the question and did not so patently expect recognition from our adorable Princess Faith. She had not seen him for several weeks and while Katherine's wise training has inured her to seeing strangers, so that she shows no fear at the sight of one, she is most chary of her smiles and little tricks of recognition, reserving them for those who are constantly with her.

Sees He's Downhearted.

I had seen in my brief interview with Dicky that, despite the brave show of carelessness he put on, he was in reality exceedingly downhearted, and I knew that if Faith failed to recognize him, as I feared, it would hurt him out of all proportion to his ordinary reaction to such an incident.

I do not think that either Katherine or I drew a real breath while the baby looked up at Dicky, at first with the indifference she bestows upon strangers who speak to her, then with the grave baby stare with which she looks at something which is beginning to interest her.

Dicky was wise enough to say no more, but simply stood smiling down at her with his hands outstretched in the manner which she has seen literally hundreds of times.

And then, with a sudden dimpling of her face, a sudden flash of her adorable smile, she scrambled to her feet, toddled to the side of the play pen, held up her arms appealingly, and uttered the magical syllables, "Da-da," with which she has greeted her father since the day—so short a time ago—that her baby lips first formed them.

"She knows me, bless her baby heart!" Dicky exclaimed jubilantly. And then he swung the laughing sprite into his arms and sat down in the nearest arm chair with her, while she began her favorite pasttime of pulling at his hair as if she had not missed it for several weeks.

"I needed that," Dicky said half to himself, and I knew that Katherine's quick glance at him was as keenly observant as my own, and that she shared my fear that Dicky was in deep need of comfort and sympathy.

"Boys, will you do something for me?" she asked, and at their polite but reluctant assent, invented an errand which would occupy them for the next ten minutes, bidding them to return to the nursery afterward.

"Will you come out and play with us when we get back?" Junior asked anxiously as they went out of the door, and Roderick echoed, "Will you, sure thing?"

"You bet," Dicky answered, and when they had hurried out, evidently counting upon the truism that the sooner they went the sooner they could return, Dicky sent a grateful smile to Katherine.

Want Breathing Spell.

"You're a good scout, Katrina," he told her, and she wrinkled her nose at him.

"I'll be a better one if you behave yourself," she said. "Suppose you take care of her royal highness for the next ten minutes while Madge and I take a breathing spell?"

"You couldn't suit me better," he said. "But Madge will tell you that you won't have much of a breathing spell. There's a he-man's job ahead of you."

"Bring it along!" Katherine said valiantly, and upon the laughing note we left Dicky and his small daughter together. I guessed that he was drawing healing and comfort for his troubled spirit from her sweetness, and wished that the time were longer for the communion.

"Ten minutes is as long as she'll stay put anywhere," Katherine said, reading my thought, and then she asked briskly, "Now what's the man-sized job?"

Menu Hint.

Canadian Bacon Baked Potatoes
Scalloped Onions
Orange Salad with Whipped Cream Dressing
Peach Custard Meringue Coffee

This is rather a "fruity" menu, but maybe fruit tastes as good to you as it does to me these days. You do not need to use the whipped cream salad dressing if you don't care to, of course. It looked good to me and so I thought I'd give you the recipe for it. You can try it on some of your girl friends when you next have a luncheon or party. The peach meringue recipe is taken from Good Housekeeping. Cook the bacon in the oven, but watch it to see it doesn't burn. It will take about 15 minutes.

Today's Recipes.

SALAD DRESSING WITH WHIPPED CREAM—Melt a tablespoon of butter in top part of double boiler, add two tablespoons lemon juice, one-third cup of orange juice, one-fourth cup sugar and two egg yolks (slightly beaten). Stir over hot water until thick. Cool. Fold in a half-cup of cream (whipped) just before serving PEACH CUSTARD MERINGUE—One cup milk, three egg yolks, slightly beaten, two tablespoons granulated sugar, speck salt, one-half teaspoon vanilla extract, six canned peach halves, three egg whites. Combine first five ingredients; cook over hot water, stirring until the custard coast spoon. Cool. Place a peach half in each custard cup. Cover with custard, top with meringue of egg whites, beaten stiff with six tablespoons sugar. Brown in oven. Serves six.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, June 17.

A particularly active and enterprising day is pressaged from the predominant lunar and solar aspects of important planets. Sudden and surprising events may transpire, with probable uprooting and change of environs, business interests and associates. Some subtlety and connivance are involved, with private agreements offering advantages.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a singularly lively, active and enterprising year, with much stirring of a surprising and unexpected nature. This may call for radical change in business plans, also environment and associates.

A child born on this day may be active, versatile, talented in unusual original directions, but may be erratic, changeable and restless. It may, however, have a kindly, sympathetic and friendly disposition, seeking to benefit its fellows by altruistic urges and ideas.

My Neighbor Says:

Pumice stone is useful in removing cigarette and ink stains from the fingers. Simply wet the stone and rub it against the stain.

You do not have to throw away lumpy sugar. It will make a simple syrup good for sweetening if put in water and heated.
